

FRESH TALKS IN ONE-WAY SYSTEM FIGHT

Report by Andrew Morris

FRESH talks will be held to sort out the future of Welshpool's controversial one-way system.

A public meeting will be held after the Highways Agency announced plans to close Church Street in Welshpool town centre for a week to carry out essential roadworks.

At a meeting of the town's Business Forum on Monday, business leaders, town councillors and members of the public all expressed their concern at the plans.

They say they fear businesses will be hit while the work is carried out by Scottish Power between May 18 and 22. The company has described the work as "essential". The forum voted to convene a public meeting in Welshpool Town Hall to debate the ongoing issues surrounding the town's one-way system.

Welshpool Town Council was set to further discuss the issue at its meeting last night (Wednesday). At the Business Forum meeting, it was proposed that the public meeting takes place after the General Election.

It was proposed that the newly elected MP along with Montgomeryshire Assembly Member Russell George be invited to attend the talks.

Senior officials and officers of Powys County Council and senior emergency service representatives will also be asked to attend the fresh talks.

It was also agreed to ask Welshpool Town Council to support the recommendations of the public meeting.

The forum also voted to call on Welshpool Town Council to write to the Highways Agency and Scottish Power calling for the Church Street scheme to be delayed until after the May Bank Holiday.

The forum sought assurances from Scottish Power that all businesses to be affected are contacted immediately.

The group also wants assurances over the potential of loss of power to town centre businesses while the work is being carried out.

Assurances that all other options other than total road closure are considered are also being sought.

Town Councillor Graham Breeze, who had encouraged businesses to turn out in force for the meeting, said he was delighted at the turnout.

Speaking after the meeting he said: "There were over 60 people packed into the council chamber and not one said they were happy with the one-way system."

"The meeting was also united in disbelief at a decision to close Church Street in the week leading up to May Bank Holiday."

"There will be gridlock and traffic will be at a standstill for miles in all directions with everyone being forced to travel to the railway station and up Severn Road."

"It's absolute madness."

Water scheme will bring jobs boost

OSWESTRY'S water treatment works is to be given a multi-million pound upgrade in a project which will also create 50 jobs.

Some £54million is being spent on completely redesigning the works. Danny Brennan, United Utilities project manager, said: "This is a flagship scheme for us, modernising one of our most important treatment works in the North West, which supplies almost a million customers in Liverpool and Cheshire."

"It's also a really special project. We're re-designing a plant built by the engineers of yesteryear for our customers of the future. The works will continue to treat and clean water well into the next century."

The original works became operational in 1892 and have never stopped supplying most of Liverpool and parts of Cheshire ever since.

The water supply starts its journey 18 miles away at Lake Vyrnwy, where it then flows to a holding reservoir at Llanforda, before it is treated at Oswestry and travels by gravity a further 50 miles to Prescot reservoir in Liverpool.

Engineers plan to use new methods to treat the water.

Proposals are laid out to tackle yobs

NEW plans to tackle the on-going problem of anti-social behaviour in Welshpool were due to be discussed at a council meeting.

Welshpool Town Council were due to receive a presentation last night (Wednesday) from Powys County Council's Safety Partnership on what steps it can take to tackle anti-social behaviour in the town centre. Councillors have been complaining for months that more needs to be done to tackle drinking and criminal damage in the town, along with boy racers.

Dyfed-Powys Police and Crime Commissioner Christopher Salmon met with councillors last year, where they aired their concerns to him.

Meanwhile, a charter working with the Polish community is being considered by the council.

The council's finance, strategy and monitoring committee recommended the town council signs up to supporting the initiative and that a designated people and place order be sought.

The council was also due to sign off plans to spend £13,500 on renovating the Puzzle Square area of town.

Jake has plenty of spring in his step

Lamb has extra leg

JAKE the lamb has more spring in his step than the other newborns on his farm.

For he was born with an extra leg at the front. But not only is his unusual appearance not hampering him, it has saved his life.

Bethan Davies, who runs Rhiwlas Farm, where Jake was born, at Llanwddyn, near Oswestry, said he will be spared a trip to the butcher and stay with her as a pet.

She said: "The plan would normally be that he would go into the food chain, but we've decided we're going to keep him as a bit of a farm mascot."

"We've named him Jake, like Jake the peg with his extra leg - we couldn't call him anything else really." Mrs Davies said everyone at the farm was surprised when her son Sion, 16, delivered Jake.

"We had fun pulling him. It was an interesting birth," she said. "The shepherd thought it was twins with the legs all mixed up together."

"The vet said he'd never seen a live five-legged lamb, he'd only seen pictures."

"We've got a retired shepherd that's been shepherding for 50 years and he's never seen one before either."

Mrs Davies said she was delighted with how well Jake is doing, as many lambs with congenital abnormalities die early.

ELECTION

Health secretary makes promise to support patients

HEALTH Secretary Jeremy Hunt has vowed to give patients from Mid Wales a voice in Parliament should the Conservatives remain in government following the General Election.

Mr Hunt was in the region yesterday (Wednesday) to support Conservative Montgomeryshire candidate Glyn Davies.

Mr Hunt was quizzed by Joy Jones, chairman of the Newtown Patient Health Forum.

She told him that should A&E services move to Telford, people in Mid Wales could end up dying before reaching hospital. Mr Davies said: "It is a huge issue and it is vital that the 75 per cent of people in Montgomeryshire who use the Royal Shrewsbury Hospital are reassured."

Mr Hunt said: "There's a very powerful clinical case for centralising some services across the country."

"However, I promise that if myself and Glyn both get back in then Welsh voices will be heard on this case and Glyn will meet with the local CCG."

It came as Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg also visited the region yesterday to announce his claim that more than £1bn would have been taken out of the Welsh economy had the Liberal Democrats not stopped the Tory's plans for regional pay.

Mr Clegg visited Llanidloes to support Lib Dem Montgomeryshire candidate Jane Dodds.

DEVELOPMENT

Tollhouse fails to win a reprieve

THE Government has dashed hopes of a reprieve for a tollhouse in Oswestry.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has thrown out an appeal against a decision by English Heritage not to give the Gate House in Oswestry listed building status.

Members of Oswestry Town Council had hoped to protect the building on Shrewsbury Road to prevent it from being demolished to make way for a new Aldi supermarket on land nearby.

Councillor Sandy Best, who has led the fight to save the building, said she was hugely disappointed.

Branson tells of sadness at closure of balloon factory

Report by Mark Andrews

THEY pushed the boundaries of balloon travel together – and now Sir Richard Branson has spoken of his sadness at the closure of the factory in Per Lindstrand's name.

The entrepreneur and adventurer used balloons made by Oswestry-based Lindstrand Hot Air Balloons on record-breaking journeys across the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans in the late 1980s and early 1990s.

But the firm has now been placed in liquidation, bringing an end to almost 40 years of hot air balloon manufacturing in the town.

Per Lindstrand sold his stake in the company in 2003, but Sir Richard said it was a shame that his name was now no longer associated with balloon manufacturing.

Sir Richard, the founder of the Virgin Group of companies, said: "My adventures travelling in Lindstrand hot air balloons across the globe have given me some of my happiest memories."

"I'm saddened to see the company close its doors."

As well as his two ocean crossings, Sir Richard also used Lindstrand's balloons for three of attempts to circumnavigate the earth with Per Lindstrand.

Liquidators from Burton Sweet Corporate Recovery have now been appointed by the company's overall owners, Cameron Holdings Limited in Bristol, to complete the shutting down of the famous company.

However, the Lindstrand name will live on in Oswestry because Per Lindstrand now runs Lindstrand Technologies in the town, making innovative inflatable products. A statement has been posted on the Lindstrand Balloons website explaining the decision to shut the factory down, at a cost of 19 jobs.

"Hot air ballooning has become much more difficult when the regulation of balloons was passed from the British Civil Aviation Authority to the European Aviation Safety Agency," it reads.

"Badly designed rules have made ballooning much more expensive without any improvement in safety and many participants have given up."

The statement also says that the value of the pound against the euro makes selling balloons more difficult on the continent.

Donna is named inspirational mum of year

Donna Harrington with four of her children Diego, Evie, Emilie and Leighton

LLANGYNOG mother Donna Harrington has been named inspirational mum of the year.

Mrs Harrington has launched an appeal to raise £60,000 for her nine-year-old daughter Emilie – who has cerebral palsy – to go to America for treatment to help her mobility.

Just two years ago she successfully did the same for her youngest daughter, Evie, seven, who also has the condition and is now able to walk with the help of a frame.

The mum of five said what made the award so special was that it had been her elder daughter, Olivia, 10, who nominated her.

She said: "She didn't tell me what she was doing, I know nothing about it until I received an email saying I had been short-listed."

"I am only doing what any mum would do – their best for their children."

"I just want to give them the best start in life and help them to become as independent as possible."

Olivia and her mum travelled to London at the weekend for the event, in aid of the Caron Keating Foundation.

"It was a fabulous day and we heard so many inspiring stories," Mrs Harrington said.

"I met one young girl, a beautiful little lady who has been having treatment for leukaemia for the last two and a half years.

"She has now finally stopped and just has to go to hospital once a month for a check up."

"She is so full of life and so confident."

The patron for the Inspirational Mother Awards is Gloria Hunniford and the awards acknowledge inspirational mothers and raise money for The Caron Keating Foundation.

Caron lost her battle with cancer in 2004 and subsequently Gloria and her sons Paul and Michael set up a fund in Caron's name – The Caron Keating Foundation – which gives grants to all types of cancer charities.

Man who threatened to expose escort gets jail term

Report by Andrew Morris

A MAN threatened to expose a female escort to her employers, a court was told.

Ian Ashley Jones contacted the woman through Facebook and demanded £490 because he was desperate to pay his rent.

But his victim decided to tell her employers herself, which she felt was putting her job in jeopardy. She also contacted the police, and Jones, who admitted blackmail at an earlier preliminary hearing, was this week jailed for 16 months.

Judge Nicolas Parry also made a restraining order, without limit of time, under which 23-year-old Jones is not to contact the victim, approach her place of work, or mention or identify her on social media.

The judge, sitting at Mold Crown Court, also made a Contempt of Court Act order under which the identification of the blackmail victim cannot be made public in order to protect her.

Blackmail, said Judge Parry, was "an ugly crime" which was serious because it caused mental anguish. He said Jones, of Brook Street in Welshpool, made several demands with menaces for money and preyed on a vulnerable, hard-working lady in low paid employment who chose to work as an escort for extra cash.

"You used her services and then threatened her, saying you would report her to her employers and expose her to the local press unless she gave you money," the judge told him. She was so desperate that she provided him, via Facebook, a break-down of her finances to prove that she would not be able to afford what he was asking for.

The judge told him: "She felt that she had no alternative but to tell her employers herself and then the police."

Prosecutor Emmalyne Downing told how in her spare time the woman worked as an escort to get extra money.

As an escort she met the defendant for the first and last time in January and in February he contacted her on Facebook.

He said things were bad for him and he was about to be evicted.

Myles Wilson, for Jones, told Tuesday's sentencing court that that blackmail was a very mean offence.

He said the victim would have been very worried after receiving the messages.

No money changed hands during what Mr Wilson said was a half baked scheme where the defendant had committed his demands to Facebook, which was "a completely idiotic thing" to do.

Jones was facing eviction and did not give a thought to how the victim would feel, he said.

'Unique' circumstances led to tragedy, inquest is told

Report by Pam Kingsley

A UNIQUE set of circumstances caused the accident in which a lorry driver was crushed by a car park barrier in Oswestry, an inquest has heard.

William Ernest Barker, 68, from Rochdale, died on May 27 at the Smithfield Street car park in Oswestry town centre after the barrier came loose from where it was secured and entered his cab.

The jury of nine women and one man at his inquest last week recorded a conclusion of accidental death caused by a number of factors. They recorded that Mr Barker, who was delivering goods to the town's Argos store at the time of the accident, died of crush injuries and traumatic asphyxia due to the wing mirror of his vehicle coming into contact with the defective and ineffectively secured open height restriction barrier at the car park.

Man banned for driving dangerously

A ROYAL Navy engineer has been heavily fined for dangerous driving in Mid Wales.

But it was stressed at Mold Crown Court that his driving had nothing to do with the death of a motorcyclist.

Defendant David Stone was initially arrested on suspicion of causing death by dangerous driving. But he admitted a charge of dangerous driving following his earlier behaviour on the A458 Llanfair Caereinion to Welshpool road on June 1.

Prosecuting barrister Maria Massellis said a police officer witnessed Stone's driving, and followed the defendant, intending to stop him. But before he could do so, there was a crash behind him.

Radiographer Melanie Lakin, 29, of Tamworth, had been unable to control her machine and collided with a Toyota ahead of her, which was behind the police motorcyclist.

She was unseated and hit by an on-coming BMW and was declared dead at the scene.

Miss Massellis said that the prosecution had given very careful consideration to the charge but there was no link between that accident and the defendant's driving.

Stone, 25, of Pant y Neuadd Caravan Park, Tywyn in Gwynedd, was fined £1,500 with £655 costs and he was banned from driving for a year. He must take an extended re-test.

Defending barrister Andrew Green stressed that the tragic accident was not connected to his client's driving.

Constable Ian Edwards, a collision investigator for West Mercia Police, said he had never seen an accident like this before.

"It's very unique. I deal with 80 to 90 incidents a year and I haven't dealt with an incident similar to this in 15 years," he said.

His investigation revealed that the wing mirror of the lorry had caught the end of the barrier and pulled it towards the cab.

"The end of the barrier arm would have been obscured by the wing mirror. As he caught it that had pivoted it into the cab," he said.

"The vehicle continued forward as the driver would have been unaware until the window had been smashed. It's likely that the driver's door would have acted as a fulcrum and the barrier had moved forward and pushed his seat forward, trapping him."

Constable Edwards said the vehicle was travelling at no more than 3mph at the time of the collision, and said the barrier was identified in the risk assessment plan for the site prepared by Mr Barker's employees Wincanton.

"It's possible in the final seconds that Mr Barker did attempt to stop his own vehicle," he added.

"We've heard he was conscious in the last second so I suspect he attempted to stop once he realised what was happening."

The inquest heard that the barrier had been damaged the week before the incident and as a result staff at Argos had been using a chain to hold it back to allow lorries to make deliveries.

Mr Barker was also having to manoeuvre around a lorry making a delivery to the next door store.

The Health and Safety Executive is investigating the accident.

Probe on diet pills death

A WOMAN has died after taking diet pills she bought over the internet.

Eloise Aimee Parry fell ill after taking the pills, which were described as "toxic and very dangerous".

Police have warned women not to buy pills online after launching an investigation.

The 21-year-old died at Royal Shrewsbury Hospital on April 12.

The pills are believed to contain a substance called dinitrophenol or DNP.

Miss Parry, from Shrewsbury, was a student at Glyndwr University in Wrexham and was on course to study a masters when she finished her degree.

Her family made a desperate plea to other young women to learn from Miss Parry's mistake. Eloise's mother Fiona said she had taken the pills unaware that an overdose could kill her.

She said: "The drug was in her system, there was no antidote. Two tablets was a lethal dose - and she had taken eight. She never intended to take her own life. She just never really understood how dangerous the tablets that she took were."

"There were so many things that she dreamed of doing - travelling, having a career and having a family - things that she never got a chance to experience."

West Mercia Police is conducting an investigation into the circumstances of Eloise's death and gave a stark reminder to the public of the dangers of buying substances online.

BREEZE ABOUT TOWN

I've already had just about enough of the hype about next month's General Election and I wonder just how many of you feel the same way?

I've had it up to the eye-balls with empty promises from pumped up party leaders who are suddenly competing with one another to offer us just about anything they think we will fall for.

But they may be underestimating just how good our memories are as we are asked to believe each party will lead us to the promised land of untold riches and prosperity.

What I do know is that under successive Governments my standard of living has fallen and any plans for retirement have been wrecked by changes to the pension laws. Unemployment may well be falling but we are all earning less and the economic failings of the last decade mean it is virtually impossible for youngsters to get on the housing ladder without the bank of mum and dad.

I've always been what they term as a floating voter without allegiances to any party and it is clearly like-minded people who will determine the 2015 election result. But what's annoyed me most is the constant leaflets dropping through my letter box, promising to change my life for ever if I vote one way or the other. One party in particular has really over-stepped the mark in Montgomeryshire, following up their constant barrage of propaganda with telephoned pleas for votes. It's just too much.

Well I've got news for you guys – this is one floating voter you just lost and judging by Facebook and Twitter chat I won't be alone.

... You just have to laugh at the sheer hypocrisy of supermarket giants Morrisons who have objected to a plan for a new Lidl store on the outskirts of Oswestry.

Morrisons already has had plans granted to build on the Shrewsbury Road site but has objected to the Lidl scheme because of the effect the development would have on town centre businesses.

With Aids also set to build just down the road it's no great secret that the town centre of Oswestry is going to take a big hit and the Chamber of Commerce is rightly concerned.

There's great irony in the Morrisons' protest but they actually do have a point. This could be one supermarket too many for Oswestry and a matter that the chamber must surely oppose.

I am constantly being told how visitors enjoy exploring the town's independent stores. It would be a great shame if it becomes only visitors that can be found in the town centre. Without local shoppers Oswestry town centre will die.

Dairy farmers protest against lifting of EU milk quotas on the streets of Brussels

PETER RHODES

Headlines of the future. April 22, 2035. Sir John Chilcot, aged 95, announces he is at last ready to release his long-awaited report into the Iraq War but, unfortunately, cannot remember where he put it.

Let us celebrate St George's Day in true English style. Let us not wear fancy dress. Let us not sing patriotic songs, march through the streets or fly our national flag. Why not? Because those are the sort of things that foreigners do.

If we are in for a long hot summer, as some experts forecast, there will be winners and losers. The winners will be the lucky ones whose fetes and garden parties fall on long, shimmering summer days. The losers will be those poor devils whose outdoor events, carefully planned months in advance, coincide with the only downpour of the season. It is part of the British character that we respond to such things by declaring stoically: "The rain didn't dampen our spirits." Ah, but it does. Rain dampens everything and if your spirits are not thoroughly drenched then there is something seriously wrong with you. This summer, in the puddly aftermath of disappointment, let us ban all claims of undampened spirits.

Meanwhile, the war against prepositions goes on. The creeping Americanisation of English which has given us truly awful constructions such as "apfel the verdict" and "protest the decision" continues with Ed Miliband issuing the challenge to David Cameron: "Debate me." This, from a politician who, two weeks from now, could be responsible for every state school in Britain.

A friend has been nicked for speeding on a section of a motorway he uses every day where the limit had been changed to a variable system and so-called "stealth" cameras are operating. The speeding ticket took two weeks to arrive and to his horror, it struck him that if he had been nicked once, he must surely have been caught many times.

After all, he drove at the same speed on Monday as he did on Tuesday, Wednesday and every other day. So how many more tickets were being processed or in the post?

How many penalty points were on the way? How long before he was banned?

He contacted the authorities and, to his relief – and astonishment – was told this was the only ticket. So was he just lucky?

Or is the system designed to limit the number of speeding tickets sent to a single driver?

After all, if they disqualified too many motorists, where would their loot come from?

Fears of dairy farmers as milk quota system ends

Farmer Richard Yates outlines dairy farmers' concerns for the future. Report by Mark Andrews

RICHARD Yates recalls the days when he used to pour milk down the drain to avoid being charged for exceeding the European milk quota.

"The going rate was 25p a litre, and I got fined 30p in the super levy, so there was no point in trying to sell it," he says.

The quota, which was introduced in 1984 to tackle the infamous European wine lakes and butter mountains, has been lifted after more than 30 years.

But while few farmers will mourn the end of being forced to throw away their produce, there is trepidation among Shropshire's beleaguered dairy farmers about the end of the ceiling.

Start

"It will be all right as long as the producers in other EU countries don't go mad and start overproducing," says Mr Yates, who has a herd of 110 British Friesian cows from his family farm near Bridgnorth.

"The European Union's own figures forecast growth of five per cent in production, and that will mean more downward pressure on milk prices.

"The danger is that when prices fall, the obvious reaction will be for farmers to produce more milk to make up the shortfall, and that will drive prices down further."

It has been a tough year for the county's dairy farmers, with many being forced out of business as a result of falling prices, and Mr Yates, who is chairman of the Shropshire branch of the National

Cows feeding happily – but it has been a tough year for dairy farmers

Farmers Union, fears it will be a while before the tough times are over.

"There will be more casualties," he says. "There will be more farmers leaving the industry."

The quota was a response to the scandal of the so-called butter mountains and wine lakes, where farmers produced food and drink for which there was no demand just to qualify for subsidies under the controversial Common Agricultural Policy.

"Nobody likes to see quotas in place, but it was needed at the time," says Mr Yates.

The concerns have been echoed across the English Channel, where farmers are worried that lifting ceilings on milk production could lead to a free-for-all.

Dairy farmers took to the streets of Brussels to protest against the lifting of European Union milk quotas, fearing the move will flood the market with cheap surplus milk.

Back in Shropshire, a dairy farmer from Minsterley, near Shrewsbury, who asked not to be named, said he was already struggling to stay afloat, and anything which drove the price down would be the final straw.

"It won't be a problem as long as we don't get flooded with foreign milk which will drive the price down," he says.

"The last 12 months has been horrendous, the milk price has dropped by 10p a litre. We've been running at a loss for six months now."

Despite these concerns Mr Yates, whose family has worked Manor Farm at Middleton Scriven since 1971, says that ultimately the milk quota had to go.

"In reality, the quota hasn't affected us since foot-and-mouth disease devastated the countryside in 2001," he says. "Our production has not been back to anything like pre-2001 levels, so we have been effectively able to produce as much as we like."

The quota has been scrapped in order to allow European producers to compete with US and Australian farmers, who have been targeting the burgeoning markets of countries such as China and Korea. "We're hoping the Chinese market which will be golden goose that will save the industry," says Mr Yates.

But while the quotas have been criticised, they did provide some price stability.

Fear

The big fear for small farmers is that production will no longer be based on the amount of milk being consumed.

They say that will only benefit big food companies and could lead to milk being dumped abroad.

"It serves no purpose to raise production and dump milk on other countries, as is the case in Africa today, which is destroying smaller producers both in Africa and in Europe," said European Milk Board spokesman Erwin Schoepges.

The NFU is uncertain how the end of the production ceilings will play out. NFU West Midlands regional director Rob Newbery says: "With milk prices yet to show any strong signs of recovery, this could push farm gate milk prices down further in the EU, and stall any recovery in the dairy markets."

Mr Newbery says in the UK low and volatile prices have affected milk production rather than quotas. Shropshire NFU county adviser Helen Cork says retailers will have an important role if they can be persuaded to focus more on local produce: "I would call for retailers to stock more quality, British dairy products; butter, cheese and yoghurt and for shoppers to keep buying these alongside milk."

CARE HOME STOPPED OUR DAUGHTER COMING HOME AFTER RESPITE AND ARE RESTRICTING OUR VISITS. WHAT CAN WE DO?

Q: My daughter is 22 and on the autistic spectrum. Last summer my wife and I placed her in a Respite Home for two weeks so that we could have a holiday, but since we got back they have not allowed her to return home. She is desperately unhappy and indicates often that she wants to come home to her family. To make matters worse our visiting has been restricted by the home due, they say, to her behaviour and distress following visits. We are totally distraught. What can we do?

A: If your daughter is being prevented from returning home, or if your visits to her are being significantly restricted, then she is being deprived of her liberty. The care home manager should alert the local authority who should then, if it is necessary, authorise her continuing detention by what is known as a DoLS or Deprivation of Liberty Safeguard. If this does not happen you can, with the proper advice and assistance, compel the local authority either to issue a DoLS or to cease to restrict her liberty i.e. allow her to see you and also allow her to return home.

If a DoLS is issued and your daughter continues to be in the home and/or your visits continue to be restricted, you or she can apply to the Court of Protection to resist this. The fact that the local authority may talk about your daughter 'lacking capacity' should not prevent this. If the application is made on your daughter's behalf, legal aid is normally available regardless of her (or your) financial circumstances.

DoLS is a difficult and complex area of the law which has been subject to change recently, and the problem is that few Solicitors have expertise in it or can access the necessary Legal Aid.

Present them with zero hours contracts

"THE Palace of Westminster may have to be abandoned within 20 years unless extensive repairs and modernisations are agreed", the Speaker of the House told us recently.

He conveniently omits some salient facts which ought to be considered.

1. The country is trillions in debt.
2. Brussels is now making the majority of British law which makes the House of Lords, the second chamber of Parliament, completely redundant.

Its eight hundred plus peers are an expense we no longer need.

Those expenses include a tax-free £45,000 attendance allowance available to each one of the 800 peers listed.

3. The 650 MPs are also surplus to establishment when you consider that every law, regulation or diktat issued by Brussels cannot be refused, delayed or altered by the British Parliament.

We continue to pay each one of them a substantial salary, a gold-plated pension and £200,000 every year in expenses, subsidies and perks.

MPs have 23 points of sale in Westminster for meals and snacks.

That includes eight bars; peers have several of their own.

13,000 staff, researches, journalists and contractors can eat/drink in all but the most exclusive ones such as the Commons Smoking Room.

The Admin Committee is working to halve the £6 million annual subsidy by selling more souvenirs!

The fact remains that we are subsidising the food and drinks of the 1,450 incumbents of the Palace of Westminster and providing them with free parking in central London.

All should be presented with a zero-hours contract immediately!

Time to put House in order and let English rule England

THE British Isles were, for many years, ruled from Westminster. Over the decades came changes including the EU, powers have been given to Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales, even more power to some of our islands.

I'm happy with this but – as more power is devolved to other assemblies we in England are still, in effect, ruled at Westminster by all or most of the countries that have now considerable rights to rule themselves.

We desperately need a shake-up to give those of us who live and vote in England a right to rule ourselves. Yes, our own Parliament/assembly.

As to the existing Parliament its powers should be restricted to such items as are nationally and internationally of great importance, such as defence, international trading and sharing of climate change actions.

All who sit in the English assembly should live in England, preferably in the area they represent. They should be employed full time by the people of England, meet perhaps in the Midlands.

From these bodies representatives should be sent to the upper Parliament (not more important, just different). The MPs for this body should be in keeping with the number of citizens they represent and should definitely have a real knowledge and preferably experience of what they will be debating. They would have powers to make laws and advise both the House of Lords and the local parliaments.

They would be paid only for the work they do, no one would turn up, then vanish. They could do other work that was not in conflict with their work as MPs, or would not benefit from the knowledge they gain as MPs.

The House of Lords would still exist, but much modified so that only those who really worked and added value to the work of the House would be paid.

Bible contains the important forecast

WEATHER forecasting using satellite technology means that by studying the forces at work around the globe they can usually predict our weather and give a warning.

It should be even more important to us to take notice of the political forces in our ever shrinking world. There are now more wars going on in the world than ever.

The very technology invented for man's benefit is being used to create death and destruction, misery and famine on a massive scale. The whole human race is in mortal danger of being destroyed by nuclear war.

If you really want to know the 'world weather forecast', read the Bible, it's all happening as predicted. We are in what the Bible calls the last days.

It's all written in the Book, but ultimately man will not be allowed to destroy God's earth.

Banning train drink service is not right answer

AFTER reading several newspaper reports concerning British Rail's proposed plan to ban alcohol in its buffet cars, in a knee-jerk reaction to alleged deaths at stations, I believe it would be unfair to ban a service which has been available to the travelling public for 180 years.

It has been claimed that alcohol has been a contributory factor in 21 of 32 deaths on platforms in the past 10 years.

My answer would be that if these individuals choose to use a train while under the influence they should be turned away as they could also constitute a danger to the majority of the sensible travelling public.

Also listed as a concern regarding accidents are people being distracted by using mobile phones, falling over bags, or tripping up in high heels.

I expect that if they chose to ban all those as well it would dramatically reduce if not eradicate the majority of the accidents.

Unfortunately, it would also result in a reduction of customers using the trains.

Politicians must engage with younger voters

WHILE we hear so much about this important General Election, isn't it time that our elected representatives whoever they are or will be, start to listen to the views, opinions and feelings of young people as well?

Young people are talented, energetic and motivated and want to play an important part in our society. When I speak to my friends they say that they get turned off by politics and that it doesn't affect them.

For far too long young people have not been engaged with politics and the political process. Is that because they don't understand? It is probably some of the reasons, but also can politicians be blamed for not carrying out their duty and engaging with the whole of their electorate.

I am not saying that all politicians are the same but there is a large amount of them that only do what the minimum is and talk about the same old issues.

It is time for change!

Work to install pipes is started

WORK costing £200,000 to install more than 1.5 kilometres of new plastic water pipes in a village has started. Severn Trent Water will replace old cast iron water pipes in and around Llanfechain. It is hoped the new pipes will be ready to serve homes in the area by June.

The work will include a series of road closures and temporary traffic lights over the next two months.

Gareth Mead, spokesman for Severn Trent Water, said: "The first part of the work will start on the B4393 heading past the village hall to the junction with Maes Mechain using temporary traffic lights for about two weeks. Later in April, to keep our engineers and everyone else who uses the road safe, we'll need to close the road from the junction of Maes Mechain to Llanfechain. This part should take about three weeks to complete.

"For the last part of the work, starting in mid May, we'll need to close the road between Llanfechain Bridge and Ffynnant Lane."

New restaurant is set to open

PULLED pork and barbecue sauce will be on the menu when an American-style smokehouse opens in Oswestry next month.

The Smokehouse Grill will be opening in the former Lepone's Italian restaurant in Salop Road as soon as May 1.

Lepone's moved out of the restaurant and into a former church in Oswald Road earlier this year.

Renovations are now being done on the restaurant to transform it from a Mediterranean bistro to an all-American smokehouse.

The Smokehouse Grill has started recruiting staff for the new business.

Nest wars in the skies as ospreys return to region

Report by Pam Kingsley

NEST wars are being fought high in the trees in Mid Wales.

A day after the first osprey was spotted returning to a nesting area after the winter break in Africa, the nest's owner swooped in to chase off the usurper and take his place at the top of the tree.

In what was almost a repeat of events last year, Monty the osprey returned to his nest near Machynlleth, which is looked after by the Dyfi Osprey Project, to find younger male Dai Dot already there.

And when Monty's mate for the past two years, Glesni, arrived, she found another female, Blue 24, getting friendly with Monty.

Dai Dot had been the first osprey to make a return, landing on Easter Monday. He was followed first thing the following day by Blue 24, who had a brief liaison with Dai Dot in 2014 on the Dyfi nest before resident breeding pair Monty and Glesni arrived.

In the afternoon a third bird joined the fray when Monty landed on the nest, to the delight of staff at the Dyfi Osprey Project.

Emyr Evans, of the Dyfi Osprey Project, said: "It's been one of those magical days on the Dyfi that crop up from time to time. Not only did one osprey turn up, three did.

"At about 2.20pm after the warm-up acts, the main man made his entrance. Monty left his Dyfi nest last year on September 7, and exactly seven months to the day later on April 7, he returned. He looks in great shape."

The team was even more delighted when Glesni made her appearance.

The birds spend the winter in Africa before flying 3,000 miles back to the area to breed each year. They have been recorded at the Dyfi nest for the past seven years.

Road design worries are highlighted

THERE is a lack of suitable places for tractors and lorry drivers to safely pull over on a main road through Mid Wales, it has been claimed.

Motorists driving on the A489 between Newtown and Llanidloes have raised the issue, which has been brought to the attention of the Welsh Assembly by Montgomeryshire AM Russell George. He is now waiting for an answer from transport minister Edwina Hart.

Mr George said he is now concerned that frustrated drivers held up in the traffic will be tempted to overtake in dangerous places.

He said: "I have raised the lack of suitable lay-bys along this section of the trunk road with the minister." Mr George said there is also a problem developing on the A483 bypass at Four Crosses, between Oswestry and Welshpool.

He said: "Local residents have highlighted a long standing safety issue by the existing roundabout towards Welshpool. The national speed limit applies and road markings allow drivers to overtake. There are a number of properties along this section and residents find it difficult to pull out of these properties safely."

Village hall is the venue for movie

THE Imitation Game (12A) starring Benedict Cumberbatch will be shown at Trefonen Village Hall on Saturday.

Based on the real life story of legendary code-breaker Alan Turing, the film portrays the nail-biting race against time by his top-secret team to break the Enigma Code during the darkest days of World War Two. The film will be shown at 7.30pm. Tickets are £4 for adults and £2.50 for children, and will be available on the door.

The New Saints have led the way in the use of state of the art artificial pitches. Photos: Brian Jones.

Club bosses are hopeful the new pitch will help bring more success

New pitch for TNS

IT was an innovation when it was installed eight years ago.

But now the artificial pitch at the Park Hall ground near Oswestry that is the home of Welsh football champions, The New Saints, is being rolled up and removed to make way for a state-of-the-art replacement, so the club can host European matches once again.

TNS was the first to use a synthetic pitch in the Welsh league. It has helped the players to take no less than six Welsh premiership titles and has seen a number of European games played on its surface. As well as TNS' first team, the pitch has been used by thousands of players over the last few years, from mini soccer and academy players to a popular Monday night league and more recently those taking up walking football for the over 50s.

But two years ago UEFA decreed that the pitch no longer met European standards and TNS had to move its European games to other venues, such as Newtown and Wrexham.

So this week contractors went in and literally rolled up the 'turf'.

In just two days the workers removed the ageing pitch, revealing the base underneath and are now about to start the task of installing its replacement. Gilbert Woolley, from TNS, said: "The pitch will be replaced ahead of the 2015/2016 season, with the first fixture to be played on the new pitch set to be the UEFA Champions League tie in early July."

The New Saints will be able to play European football games at Park Hall thanks to the new pitch

Warning is given on rogue traders

RESIDENTS and businesses in Powys are being warned by the county council that a team of rogue traders are in the county offering to tarmac people's driveways or white lining works.

The warning has been issued by Powys County Council's Trading Standards Service after a spate of reports that residents are being approached and offered tarmac services.

Local businesses and schools have also been targeted with the offer to tarmac or repaint white lines.

Sue Bolter, the county council's head of regeneration property and commissioning, advised: "Our advice is never to accept work from cold callers and remember the older saying that if it is too good to be true, it usually is."

Plans launched to mark war end

A WELSHPOOL man is calling on the town's businesses to help him to organise a weekend to mark the 70th anniversary of the end of the Second World War.

Last year Alan Crow and Freda Davies organised a highly successful 1940s-themed Welshpool Winter Festival.

Now Mr Crowe has been challenged to do it again as part of the town's celebrations to mark the end of the Second World War and is asking the business community to help him pull it off. He is hoping the event will be held on the weekend of September 5 and 6.

He said: "If every town centre business gave just £10 then there would be £3,000 in the kitty."

Work is carried out on castle's famous gardens

Report by Pam Kingsley

MAJOR work has taken place at Powis Castle to get the gardens in tip top condition ready for the influx of visitors expected over the spring and summer.

Head gardener David Swanton and his team have been carrying out a lot of work over the winter to prune, weed and generally tidy up the extensive gardens.

Although the winter was mild with no heavy snow, ice or extreme cold temperatures to cause damage to the garden or nursery, there was still more than enough work to keep the garden staff busy.

Mr Swanton said: "The warmer winter we experienced this year allowed us to keep busy in the gardens throughout the colder months. We've done many annual jobs such as pruning and tying-in all the climbers throughout the garden, but we've also made some changes that should make a real difference to people's visit.

"In the wilderness woodland we've removed rhododendron ponticum in order to open up the magnificent views of the surrounding countryside and castle.

"We've also split and cut back many of our yew hedges throughout the garden in a continuing programme of renewal for the plants.

"Although cutting them so far back may look extreme, it is common practice when hedges become overgrown and they'll soon grow back better and stronger than ever."

David Swanton, head gardener at Powis Castle, has been keeping the gardens tip-top for the spring

Carnival will have circus fun this year

PADDINGTON Bear, the raccoon from the Walkers crisps advert and a donkey that appeared in Heartbeat will be starring in a circus scene at Welshpool Carnival this year.

The carnival, organised by Welshpool Town Council, will be held on Bank Holiday Monday, May 25.

Floats, groups and walkers are invited to join the procession for the chance to win cash prizes. The parade will leave Berriew Street Car Park at 1pm and go around the town before ending at Maes Y Dre fields.

Alongside the floats and circus will be a horse and carriage for the Victory Queen, bay lammas and other animals in a petting corner, a Viking re-enactment, crazy golf, ferret racing, a dog show, duck racing, and donkey and pony rides.

There will be displays of classic cars and performances by the Guilsfield school dancers, the fire service and birds of prey. Outside the arena there will be children's games, a funfair, bouncy castles, side shows and quad bikes. Food stalls will be available throughout the afternoon.

Entry is free, but donations will be collected at the gate.

Cashless payments plan for schools

CASHLESS payments will be introduced at schools across Mid Wales in a bid to make it easier for staff and pupils.

Powys County Council said it is exploring a new payment system which will allow pupils to pay for lunch with a pre-loaded card.

Mayor warns of funding crisis facing local groups

THE mayor of Oswestry says it has become harder to help sustain local organisations with grants and funding, because of the economic climate.

Councillor John Gareth Jones has praised the work of countless groups across the town of Oswestry that he said 'made the town tick'.

Speaking at his civic dinner, held at The Wynnstay, he said the last 12 months had really impressed on him how lucky Oswestry was to have so many organisations and individuals who worked tirelessly to improve the quality of life for others.

He said: "Sustaining those organisations with funding has been so difficult in recent years due to the economic climate. But as mayor I have been privileged and heartened to see the many adjustments they have made and the wonderful spirit that exists." He said that his mayor's charities for the year were the Oswestry Senior Citizens' Club, of which he was chairman, and Designs in Mind, a group that, through art, helps those with mental health issues.

Despite the economic downturn, Councillor Jones said it was staggering to see the role and influence that Oswestry Town Council had in the everyday life of the town, from being responsible for Cae Glas Park to helping Oswestry Museum in the Guildhall.

He said: "Thanks to Bill Longmore, our police and crime commissioner, we secured nearly £70,000 of funding and as a result have one of the finest voluntary CCTV systems in the UK."

"The council secured £68,000 Heritage Lottery Funding for our cemetery project and, with support from the Royal British Legion we have restored the War Memorial at Cae Glas Park."

More motorists making use of town's car parks

Report by Sue Austin

MORE drivers are making use of Oswestry's main car parks, helping to swell the coffers of the town council and bringing more people into the town centre.

Over the last 12 months 830,074 tickets have been issued for the three car parks run by the council – 19,530 more than in the previous 12 months, and an increase of 2.4 per cent.

Motorists are also stopping for longer, the figures indicate.

Figures released by Oswestry Town Council show the biggest increase is in those staying between four and six hours.

The council is responsible for the running and maintenance of the large Central car park, the Smithfield Street park and the Horsemarket next to the indoor and outdoor market. Profits go back into council funds, helping the authority to run its various services and keep its council tax precept low.

In a report to Oswestry Town Council's markets and car parks committee, council finance officer, Roger Dyke, says: "The total income from the three car parks for April to March 2014/15 totals £625,780 compared to £602,441, an increase of 3.87 per cent."

The biggest increase in tickets issued was in the Central Car Park which saw a 4.4 per cent in income and £450,627 raised.

Most drivers are still staying in the town for either one hour or between one and two hours with Smithfield car park, by the Memorial Hall, seeing the biggest number of one hour shoppers. However overall there was a 16.4 per cent increase in the number of people staying between four to six hours in all the car parks.

Firefighters raise funds for charity

A TEAM of Oswestry firefighters have raised hundreds of pounds for charity after completing a five kilometre run – wearing their full firefighting kit.

Members of the crew from Oswestry Station were joined by two of the firefighters' children for the Run for the 95 5k at Stanley Park in Liverpool on Sunday. The fundraising event was created in memory of the 96 Liverpool football fans who died as a result of the Hillsborough tragedy at Sheffield Wednesday's ground in 1989.

Among the firefighting team who took part in the running challenge was Oswestry firefighter Robyn

Evans, who was joined by his nine-year-old daughter Tessa.

Firefighter Troy Smith also took part with this 10-year-old daughter Lottie while firefighters James Lewis, Mike Mounsey and Steve Weston also took part in the challenge. The team has raised £700 through their efforts.

NEWS IN BRIEF

UFO spotted in skies in region

A MAN claims he saw a UFO racing through the night sky on the Powys/Shropshire border.

Jamie Keeling, from Four Crosses, near Oswestry, said a deep rumbling sound caused him to look up into the sky on April 9.

He saw a large black triangular craft flying overhead with a red light at each corner.

Mr Keeling, a 28-year-old company director who is a keen amateur astronomer, said: "I looked up and saw a large black triangular craft flying overhead with a bright, pulsating red light."

"Red was the only colour light visible on the entire craft and it was on the three corners."

"It appeared at approximately 9.55pm and flew directly over Four Crosses, which is where I live and it was travelling at a constant speed and height."

"It was hard to tell what altitude it was flying at, but it looked very high and very large in size and was travelling due east."

Seats are vacant on town council

VACANT seats on Welshpool Town Council will be up for grabs after two long-serving councillors decided to stand down.

Councillor John Meredith and Councillor Anne Davies – both former mayors of Welshpool – stood down from Welshpool Town Council in February.

Nominations for the two seats – in the Gungrog and Llanerchdydol wards – must be made by Wednesday to County Hall in Llandrindod Wells. If more than two candidates for both seats come forward, an election will be held on May 28.

Community backs bid to safeguard village's pub

Report by Pam Kingsley

THE last remaining pub in a village has been declared an asset of community value to protect it from development for years to come.

Regulars at the Cross Guns in Pant made the bid for protected status after seeing two other pubs in the village close in recent years.

The bid was supported by villagers and has been approved by Shropshire Council.

Listing the pub as an asset of community value gives locals in the area advance warning of any planned developments to the site, especially change of use, which could result in the pub no longer being a public house. Landlady Alison Foden said there is no current threat to the Cross Guns.

She said: "It gives the people of Pant a greater sense that the pub is unlikely to ever not be in existence."

"It's been done by concerned residents of the area who put it forward because we've had one or two issues with the brewery and people were getting worried, but I can say categorically that there are no plans to sell the pub."

The Cross Guns is owned by Marstons and leased to the landlords.

Matt Brown, national planning advisor at pub campaign group CAMRA, said listing is important for all pubs in England.

He said: "We are delighted to be informed that the Cross Guns Inn has been added to the local authority asset list and now has status as an asset of community value. The listing demonstrates how much the community values the pub."

Pubs have been closing at the rate of about 29 per week across the country.

Care centre call made by party chief

AN urgent care centre in Montgomeryshire is essential – especially in light of the threat to the accident and emergency unit in Shrewsbury, according to the leader of the Welsh Liberal Democrats.

Welsh Assembly Member Kirsty Williams said care should be brought closer to home for people living in the Powys area rather than them having to rely on hospital services in Shropshire. She said: "An urgent care centre in Montgomeryshire is essential if we are to relieve pressure on A&E departments and cut waiting times."

"Things simply can't keep continuing the way they are. People are absolutely fed up of having to travel hours on end for what should be easily available care."

Her comments came during a visit to Montgomeryshire where she also highlighted the importance of keeping A&E services in Shrewsbury.

Under the Future Fit proposals being put forward by NHS Shropshire Telford & Wrekin, the A&E departments of the Royal Shrewsbury Hospital and Princes Royal Hospital in Telford are currently being looked at to see how best to serve the region's patients in the future.

Youngsters get street dance tips

TEENAGERS and younger children in Llanfyllin have enjoyed a master-class in street dance.

Arts Connection, a community arts project in Llanfyllin, worked with Bethan Smith to put on a street dance workshop on recently.

More than 20 children and young people learned some new dance moves and had the opportunity to create a performance by the end of the session to show their parents.

The British Ironwork Centre's Alfie Bradley is working on the sculpture

West Mercia Chief Constable David Shaw and sculptor Alfie Bradley get to work on the sculpture

Police bosses back project

THE top brass of West Mercia Police learnt a new skill by helping to create an inspirational sculpture.

Chief Constable David Shaw and Police and Crime Commissioner Bill Longmore visited the British Ironwork Centre in Aston, near Oswestry, to weld a knife onto an angel sculpture being created there.

With tuition from sculptor Alfie Bradley the two were able to make their mark on the breastplate of the sculpture, which it hoped will one day stand on the fourth plinth in London's Trafalgar Square.

The angel is being made with thousands of knives that have been confiscated or handed into police forces across the UK.

Mr Longmore said: "This really is an inspirational initiative which we hope will discourage people from carrying knives."

"More and more people seem to think it is cool to carry a knife, but if you have one on your person the temptation is there to use it and just one incident, one thrust and a life is lost."

Police forces from throughout the country have contributed knives to the project.

Report by Sue Austin

Mr Shaw said West Mercia Police had contributed 5,000 knives to the project and said he had been only too pleased to contact other chief constables to get other forces on board.

He said: "Clive Knowles from the centre is so passionate about this that you can not fail to be enthused by what he is doing. It has been a superb idea that has helped to rid the streets of some of the dreadful knives that are in circulation."

"We do not have a major problem with knife crime in West Mercia Police thank goodness, but it only takes one knife and one moment of madness to lead to a loss of life or a life changing injury."

"If a knife is in the wrong hands at the wrong time then it can be highly dangerous. Lives can be ruined - not only the victim and his family's lives but those of the perpetrator."

Mr Bradley said he was finishing the outline of the sculpture and will then begin the painstaking task of welding thousands of knives onto the angel which will stand, wings outstretched, almost 25 feet tall.

Election 2015

Controversial battle on power lines will be hot topic for voters

Jonathan Wilkinson with protestors in Llanymynech

IT has already been the topic of three years of consultations and mass protests along its 33-mile route, but the battle over controversial power plans will remain a hot topic on the agenda in Mid Wales.

Whoever is elected the new MP for Montgomeryshire after the General Election on May 7, they will be thrust into the thick of the debate over plans to build windfarms, pylons and a power line across the region.

Glyn Davies, Conservative candidate and the man who has been the region's MP for the past five years, has led the campaign against the plans so far.

And with the results of a public inquiry into plans for five windfarms set to be announced following the election, it seems whoever is in the position will have it at the top of their in-tray.

Recently, reports in a national newspaper, claimed Lib Dem Ed Davey, who served as the Energy and Climate Change Secretary in the coalition government, has given the go-ahead for three of the five windfarms.

But the plans are so unpopular that Mr Davey has refused to make a public announcement before May's election fearing it would harm the Lib Dems' chances of winning the Montgomeryshire seat.

The planning inquiry, which was held in Welshpool, was completed in May 2014. A report with recommendations was delivered to Mr Davey, who has the final say in the projects, at the beginning of December.

A spokesman at the Department of Energy and Climate Change said Mr Davey had "relinquished making any decision" and instead left it to his successor after the general election in May.

Reverse

Campaigners, who have conducted mass protests against the proposed turbines, are clinging to the hope that a future energy secretary might reverse the planning inspector's recommendation.

Should the windfarms be given the go-ahead, it would pave the way for the National Grid's Mid Wales Connection Project.

The project will see a huge substation built at Cefn Coch, near Llanfair Caereinion, and a 33-mile 200kv power line carried on pylons and underground through the Meifod Valley to the connection point at Lower Frankton, near Oswestry.

Campaigners say the electricity pylons will ruin the countryside. But National Grid says it is simply doing its duty, as laid down by government.

If the plans get the go ahead, the first seven or so miles will be overlaid through the Welsh foothills and the Banwy valley before it is sunk underground for an eight-mile stretch of the Meifod Valley.

It will then emerge to travel south of Llansantffraid and Llanymynech before crossing fields near the Montgomery canal, the Oswestry golf course, the A5, the British Ironwork Centre near Oswestry and on to the north/south line.

Montgomery Against Pylons campaigner, Jonathan Wilkinson, said that the final decision over the windfarms would be an extremely political one.

"Ed Miliband has made it very clear that his party wants to see a whole lot more windfarms and not just in Wales.

"That will make life incredibly difficult for protesters," he said.

"However David Cameron has said that the Conservatives want to look at other methods of alternative energy, such as tidal power.

"This all puts a new light on the Mid Wales connection."

"Montgomery Against Pylons has been urging National Grid for about six months now to hold the preparatory work until after the national election," added Mr Wilkinson.

Burning issues for voters are revealed

Report by Andrew Morris

POLICING, windfarms and health care are the three burning topics on the minds of people in Mid Wales in the run up to the General Election.

Shoppers in Welshpool said they were worried about cuts to Dyfed-Powys Police, plans to build windfarms, pylons and a substation in the area and also the future of cross border healthcare.

The majority also believed that Conservative candidate Glyn Davies had done a good job while MP for Montgomeryshire over the past five years.

But Martin Riffel, who owns Treehigh Sales, an old and new book shop in Welshpool Indoor Market, said he feels Lib Dem candidate Jane Dodds will give him a run for his money.

Mr Riffel, who is from Forden, said: "I am really looking forward to the election and think it will be an intriguing race both nationally and locally.

"It will be quite close and with regards to Montgomeryshire I think the Lib Dems will push Glyn all the way.

"I just feel that Jane Dodds has done an awful lot of campaigning, even welcoming

Ruth Martin – taking interest

Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg to the region twice.

Estelle Bleivas, of Waterloo Place, Welshpool, said policing matters, health care and wind farms were all topics she is looking for candidates to work on.

She said: "Something needs to be done to help the police in Welshpool.

"Christopher Salmon, the police and crime commissioner, promises more bobbies on the beat, but we need it to happen now."

She added: "The topic which everyone is talking about though is the plans for the windfarms, powerline and pylons.

"It is a huge worry for us here in Mid Wales that our glorious countryside will be decimated by the plans and Glyn Davies has been strong in the fight against them."

Ms Bleivas, who is a Welshpool Town Councillor, said she is also "worried" about the future of health care.

Marilyn Bedworth, a secretary from Welshpool, said she was looking forward to supporting Glyn Davies. She added: "I definitely will be voting and I will be voting for Glyn Davies as I class him as a friend.

"He has done a magnificent job serving the community as an MP and I know he will continue that.

"People see Glyn as a person rather than a politician and I think that helps his reputation. He is a local farmer and is passionate about local issues."

Her daughter, Ruth Martin, added: "I have voted every year, but I don't think I can this year as I haven't registered it at my new address. I take an interest however and think it will be a close run thing."

Seat battle Lib Dems 'selling a good story'

Liberal Democrats are campaigning hard in Lembit Opik's former seat. THOM KENNEDY reports

WHILE the sun shone on the daffodil yellow of the Liberal Democrats at the 2010 election, many commentators fear that next month's vote could see the party's power base slashed by more than half.

With 57 seats to its name before the dissolution of parliament, the party could find that when it returns to the Commons its army of members is whittled down to around 25.

But Montgomeryshire moved against the grain at the last vote, with incumbent Lib Dem Lembit Opik losing his seat to Conservative Glyn Davies.

Now, while party leaders fight fires all over the country, in this rural Welsh seat it hopes to light one of its own.

Jane Dodds, a social worker of 22 years and first-time parliamentary candidate, is tasked with winning back what was once a reliable seat for the party.

Policies

The Welsh speaker, from Wrexham, cut her political teeth on Richmond Council in London, and who now lives in Welshpool with her photographer husband Patrick.

"We are very clear that what we've done in the coalition is to moderate the Tories' worst excesses," she said as she joined local activists on the doorstep in Newtown.

"We've 70 per cent of manifesto policies in operation. We've delivered on fairness and some really good policies. In England, free school meals for children, the income tax threshold is raised, we've got the pupil premium and the green agenda."

She is centring her campaign on health-care, calling for the retention of health services in Shrewsbury and Aberystwyth, and raising targets for ambulance response times in the rural patch. It follows a lengthy consultation the party ran with local people on the patch.

Still, the party's decision to go into coalition with the Conservatives is clearly one that's divisive among local people. In neighbouring homes in Mill Close, she encounters one voter who is keen to support the party – but another who is furious at having been assessed as fit for work, leading her benefits to be cut. She has lost all faith in the Lib Dems, she told the 51-year-old candidate.

"What I say is the country decided," Ms Dodds says when I ask about whether entering the coalition was the right thing to do. "If we had left it, the economy was in a terrible situation in May 2010, another six months to get to another election, we couldn't have waited. Labour didn't want us so we formed a coalition with the Conservatives.

"We will do what's right for the country. Coalitions are here to stay and I'm not sure that's such a bad thing."

It's a tight race. The Conservatives remain the bookies' favourite with odds of around 1/3 in their favour, while Ms Dodds is closer to 2/1. Despite that, it's a very cordial campaign that's out of keeping with the national slugfest.

"I think it was a considerable shock last time," says Mr Davies. "They are targeting the seat and would like to win it back. Naturally I'm very keen to hold onto it.

"I think it's almost impossible to say how it will turn out, but from my perspective I feel as if it's going quite well."

Ukip's Des Parkinson is third in the running with odds of around 50/1, followed by Plaid Cymru's Ann Griffith and the Green Party candidate Richard Chaloner, both of which are regularly receiving odds of 100/1.

Labour's Martyn Singleton faces odds ranging from 100/1 to 150/1. Three key issues in both frontrunners' campaigns are health services, windfarms and pylons, and immigration and the European Union.

Ms Dodds wants pylons burying, Mr Davies wants the scheme to be scrapped.

On health services, both are keen to retain A&E services in Shrewsbury.

"The changes to the NHS structure are a cause for concern, that they move more into Telford and become inaccessible to Montgomeryshire," said Mr Davies, who first stood for his local seat at the 1997 election and who still owns a farm on the patch.

"I can only do what I have always done – work with the NHS trust and try to make the argument that we should retain services for Mid Wales as well, and I think that's accepted."

Mrs Dodds joins her party in backing

continued membership of the EU, and said: "I think in terms of immigration we need to think about the skill mix we need, but if you look at Welshpool we have a lot of Polish people there – and those Polish people are very hard working."

Mr Davies responds: "The only way to do anything about the EU is to have a referendum, and the only party that will provide that is the Conservative Party."

The concern for Lib Dems is Mrs Dodds is hoping to overcome dissatisfaction with the legacy of larger than life ex-MP Opik. "Lembit was a good constituency MP for 13 years," Mrs Dodds says.

"In 2010 people thought he was doing things that were not the type of things you do as an MP.

"Lembit has gone. I'm very different in lots of ways, with a different approach, different attitude. The Lib Dems are selling a really good story on the doorsteps."

Football final will be a real historic occasion

THE New Saints and Newtown will meet in the 128th FAW Welsh Cup Final at Pave Aways Latham Park on Saturday, May 2 for a 2:30pm kick off.

This will be a significant show-piece final as The New Saints attempt to complete a domestic treble having already secured the Corbett Sports Welsh Premier League title and the Word Cup so far this season.

Meanwhile, Newtown will be making their first Welsh Cup Final appearance in 118 years and the last time that they won the competition was 120 years ago.

Should the Saints defeat Newtown in the final, they would achieve the first League and Cup treble since Barry Town did so in the 1996/97 season. It would also be the first time that The New Saints would have achieved such a feat in their history.

The New Saints are the current holders of the Welsh Cup having beaten Aberystwyth Town 3-2 in last season's exciting Final at The Racecourse in Wrexham.

Their most gruelling encounter in this season's competition came from Caernarfon Town in Round Three, when the Saints were forced to come back from 2-0 down to win the match 3-2 due to goals from Mike Wilde, Chris Marriott and Jamie Mullan.

To get to the final, Newtown had to navigate through some difficult opponents, including a derby against local rivals Caersws in Round Four of the competition. Newtown then proceeded to eliminate Bangor City from the Welsh Cup, a club who have won the competition on eight occasions and most recently in 2013.

To set up their date with history, Newtown were forced to come from behind in the semi-finals when Rhyl scored after just three minutes. Newtown showed great character in the match and Jason Oswell and Matty Owen got themselves on the score-sheet to take the Robins to the final.

Andrew Howard, FAW's head of competitions, explained: "The Welsh Cup Final is the showcase event in the domestic football calendar in Wales and we are delighted to be hosting the match in Newtown. The venue choice is convenient for fans of both clubs and their support could prove to be the 12th man on the day."

Poet Brian offers help with finding right words

IF you are looking for a touching or meaningful poem for that special occasion an Oswestry man may have the answer.

Brian Stone takes commissions for personal poems covering a wide range of subjects and sentiments, often weaving unusual aspects skilfully around deeply felt feelings and messages.

For many years Brian has written scripts, short speeches and prose.

Poetry came to the fore with the passing of his beloved wife Christine when his grief manifested itself through his ability as a poet.

The results was a torrent of heart felt feelings woven into a touching fabric of verse.

Many readers of his book, My Journey Through Grief, have shed tears over the content while his poetry has now moved on to encompass humour, satire, messaging and children's poetry.

A percussion teacher, Brian began playing drums at the age of 13.

He worked in West End nightclubs before joining the bands on ocean liners. On his marriage Brian moved to Stoke in 1972, playing in a resident band before taking to the stage at Tiffanys in Shrewsbury.

His studies took him to Trinity College of Music in London, studying orchestral percussion with Michael Skinner, principal percussionist at Covent Garden Opera House, Andrew Smith of Philharmonia and Michael Baker of Royal RPO.

After moving into teaching full time

Brian Stone from Oswestry with one of his poem books

he formed Britain's first drum kit and percussion exam syllabus for the Guildhall School of Music and Drama in London.

He has remained an examiner for the Guildhall and for the LCM.

In 1988 he began seven years with the Shropshire Music Service and instigated the Shropshire Schools Percussion Ensemble, gaining qualified teacher status.

Brian has appeared at Theatre Clwyd on over 80 occasions and now plays in several bands and orchestras as well as conducting and nine percussion ensembles.

Chip shop is proud to offer top quality food

HUSBAND and wife team Gary and Indy Randhawa have just opened a fantastic modern brand new fish and chip shop in Whittington, refurbished to a very high standard serving top quality food at great competitive prices.

Whittington's Quality Fish & Chips offers excellent value for money. They provide an excellent take away service including kids' meal deals, serving fish and chips, home made fish cakes and pizzas, pies and pasties, sausages, chicken, chicken nuggets, kebabs, burgers, wraps, sauces, drinks and lots and lots of extras. They are open seven days a week.

Indy Randhawa said: "Certainly, fish and chips is booming: Britain eats 255 million portions annually, more than any other takeaway food."

"We are far pickier about what and where we eat these days, and we realise that the chippy must adapt, particularly when big-name chefs and restaurateurs, such as Rick Stein are opening glitzy, high-end chippies."

"There has been a huge change in the perception of what a fish and chip shop can be."

"People used to think it was an easy option."

"Now, chefs are coming in and giving fish and chips of a lot of respect."

"We fry to order, and use fresh fish, not frozen."

"We are very responsible in sourcing our fresh fish and are telling that story

Whittington's Quality Fish and Chips offers a great service to customers." Gary and Indy have worked in the family fish and chip shop business which has been running for more than 26 years.

Gary said: "Fresh fish is sweet, flaky, soft in the mouth, not that rubbery, frozen texture."

"Chips are an art, too."

"We are very happy in our new shop, we love meeting people and pride ourselves on being friendly."

"We put our customers first and all ways go that extra mile to look after them."

So if you are looking for some of the best fish and chips around, look no further than Whittington's Quality Fish & Chips.

Company's A rated window is a winner

SANDERSON'S Fine Furniture & Joinery from Four Crosses near Oswestry are now manufacturing a British Fenestration Rating Council (BFRC) A Rated Hardwood Energy Window.

Nigel Sanderson said: "We have been asked on numerous occasions to make windows for our customers, but until now we had not found the right system."

"So we decided to look into the market and see what wooden windows are available to buy. We realised there was a market for a high class hardwood High Performance Flush Casement Window." These are the first hardwood windows to be manufactured in Powys and Shropshire to the BFRC A Rated standard.

The BFRC rating scheme, rates the whole window (including the frame and any casement) on its energy saving properties.

So exactly what are Energy Efficient Windows? They are windows that help to contain and conserve heat within the home keeping out wind and rain, resisting condensation and yet allowing natural "free" energy, the warmth of the sun, to heat the home. They can be made using any frame material, in this instance hardwood. The ratings label can be used by you to make more informed choices about the energy efficiency of the windows you are looking to purchase. Energy Efficient Windows are easy to recognise, simply look for the BFRC Label, as each window rated by BFRC has a unique identify-mark on the frame or opening - it is the sign of quality. Nigel said: "We are so pleased with the final window system and customer feedback has been very positive, and having the A Rating gives our customers yet another sign of the quality product they are purchasing." To see an example of the A Rated Window or further details please contact 01691 830075 or visit the workshop at Unit 1, 2, 5 & 6 The Village Workshops, Four Crosses, Powys, SY22 6ST.

Electricity upgrade will go ahead says company

Report by Rebecca King

AN £18 million upgrade which will increase the electricity capacity of towns across north Shropshire will go ahead it has been confirmed.

Bosses from Scottish Power Energy Networks announced they had received Ofgem approval for the reinforcement works to benefit Oswestry, Wem and Whitchurch which is expected to be completed by 2022.

It will increase capacity by up to 20 per cent within the next seven years.

The news was revealed at a meeting of Whitchurch Town Council when energy experts said that the upgrade would provide the equivalent capacity for 50,000 homes.

Rachel Shorney, engineering specialist at SPEN, said: "We have had the approval for the upgrade and are now working on a more detailed plan and hope to have that by the end of summer. "The overall completion time will be between 2020 and 2022."

"As soon as we have that full plan in about six to 12 months we hope to come back and talk again and have more detail for you. The benefit for this project will be in Oswestry, Wem and Whitchurch and will increase the existing network capacity by around 20 per cent – the equivalent to the capacity for another 50,000 homes."

The plans have been anticipated for months after an initial presentation was given by the energy company last year, but bosses said they had to wait for Ofgem approval before moving any further.

New home will be opening its doors

PEOPLE are being given the opportunity to go "through the keyhole" of a bespoke house in Oswestry which is being opened to the public for one day only.

The house in Cherry Tree Drive has been designed and built by Oswestry-based Ke-design and DG Pallatina builders, who said they wanted to give people the opportunity to view the finished article after getting so many requests while the house was being constructed. Craig Marston, of Ke-design, said the modern look of the house had prompted lots of comments so they were expecting a good turnout at the open day on May 9. He said "Ke-design were approached by the owner of DG Pallatina builders, as he has an interest in good design, to design something a little different on this small plot and we relished the challenge."

"Its appearance may seem a little difference to some, but it's a modern twist on the surrounding dwellings." Dave Pallatina, of DG Pallatina builders, added: "While it was being constructed we received lots of complimentary comments from people saying how different it looked, so we thought it would be nice to throw open the doors for people to have a look inside and we will be on hand to talk to people about the design and construction of the house."

The open day will take place from 10pm to 4pm and people are welcome to just turn up without any need to book an appointment.

Firms urged to give work experience

EMPLOYERS in Mid Wales are being urged to offer more work experience placements to youngsters in a bid to boost job hunters.

Wales's commissioner for employment and skills, Scott Waddington, made the call following a major study showing that job experience is the most valued asset firms look for when hiring new recruits. Almost two thirds of employers from Mid Wales said they regarded relevant work experience as either a significant or critical requirement among those applying to join their workforces. However, less than a third of Mid Wales employers provide placement opportunities.

And the survey found that only 27 per cent offer such opportunities to those still in education. The figures emerged from a survey of 212 employers across Mid Wales. The figures showed that 26 per cent of all establishments across Mid Wales had hired one or more 16 to 24-year-olds in the past year though only 22 per cent of the firms had given jobs to those who had just completed their education. When asked how well prepared for work they found 17 to 18-year-old education leavers, Welsh employers found students from further education colleges more highly prepared than those straight from school. Mr Waddington said: "Clearly employers feel more comfortable hiring those who have some experience of their industry or job type so extending more opportunities to young people in education will help match the right people to the right jobs and help employers themselves find good calibre and well-motivated recruits."

He welcomed figures showing that a higher proportion of Welsh apprentices are on programmes lasting over two years than elsewhere in the UK.

We are an established, over 40 years, furniture and carpet store, situated in the pretty town of Chirk

The showroom is delightful to walk around, being set as it is in a Victorian school. The building itself is Grade II listed, designed by AW Pugin and built in the mid 1800s.

The business was started in 1970 by a local couple, Sonny and Ann Jones, and is now run by their daughter assisted by a very helpful and capable team of staff. We are happy to lend out both fabric and carpet samples so you can make your choice in your own home. We also happily lend out mirrors, pictures, lamps, coffee tables, nests, even small chests of drawers so you can see them in situ, and thus reducing the chances of buying a white elephant!

Enough about our lovely female staff, what about the men? Fred, Mark and Colin have a combined experience with the company of at least 40 years, nothing is too much trouble for them.

When fitting your carpet, they will empty your room, take your old carpet up and dispose of it, trim any doors that need trimming, and then replace your furniture back onto your brand new carpet.

Staff at Shannon Sales and their friends will be walking up Snowdon in aid of Cancer Research on Sunday, May 24.

Power plant in sheds plan has cleared big hurdle

AN energy plant planned for the Shropshire countryside has overcome a major hurdle after the Environment Agency said it had no objections to the scheme.

The agency has said it has no causes for concern for the anaerobic digester, which would be built by chicken sheds at Hollins Lane in Woodseaves, near Market Drayton.

It comes despite residents claiming the plant would lead to an increase in noise and dust and affect people using the Shropshire Union Canal.

Shropshire Council received about 10 objections about the impact on the environment and traffic.

Mark Davies, a planning specialist for the Environment Agency, said: "We have no objections to the proposed development."

He added there was a low fluvial flooding risk and that the proposed site was not close to any sites of special scientific interest.

But in a letter to Shropshire Council, Jocelyn Peach, of Tynley, said: "Goods vehicle noise and pollution travelling across the field track/road from the proposed site to meet the Hinstock/Market Drayton Road needs to be considered."

"If granted then overall site noise levels and dust levels need to be restricted along with restrictions for the hours of arrivals and departures by heavy plant and vehicles. Potentially there are health implications due to fly infestations."

Resident John Knight said: "This stretch of the Shropshire Union Canal is amongst the most popular and beautiful in the entire canal system, and the enjoyment of thousands of canal users would be significantly impaired."

Applicant HLW Farms wants to build the plant to process chicken litter as well as crops to make enough electricity to become self-sufficient.

It is believed the plant could generate up to 800kW of electricity per hour, and energy not used on the farm would be fed into the local grid.

Farmer fined for not putting up a fence

A FARMER has been ordered to pay £14,000 for not putting up a fence.

David Richard Thomas, of Bryndraenog Farm, pleaded guilty to failing to stop his cattle polluting a water course that is home to a rare type of mussel.

The River Clun is among the few remaining breeding grounds of the endangered fresh water pearl mussel, and a protected habitat.

But Thomas had allowed cattle access to the banks of the River Unk, which feeds into the Clun, which resulted in "polluting matter" that could harm the mussels entering the water course, Telford Magistrate's Court heard.

Thomas had declined an offer to fund fencing that would stop the cattle getting access, and failed to act on a notice from the Environment Agency, served on January 20, to take action and install fencing on his land at Dutlas, on the Shropshire border with Powys.

He was ordered to pay a £13,000 fine, plus £1,000 in costs and £120 victim surcharge.

Siobhan Bruce, speaking for the Environment Agency, said: "Freshwater Pearl Mussels are in serious decline and River Clun is one of the few remaining sites where they can be found. Failure to act to protect them could result in proceedings from the European Union."

"When Mr Thomas failed to install the fencing, Natural England and the Environment Agency offered to fund the work. Unfortunately, this offer was declined so the Environment Agency had no alternative but to serve Mr Thomas with a notice to carry out the work."

The action comes as Shropshire Hills AONB Partnership has secured over £360,000 from the WREN Biodiversity Action Fund, Woodland Trust and Severn Rivers Trust to work with landowners improve the condition of the River Clun Special Area of Conservation, a project which includes creating recovery sites for freshwater pearl mussels, which could die out in the next 20 years, it is feared.

Food for the future tops experts' agenda

Mimi, Simon, Anthea McIntyre, Kim Beynon

TOPICS about the future of our planet have been discussed by world-leading experts in the heart of Shropshire.

Scientists from across the UK descended on Harper Adams University to mull over how future generations will feed themselves.

The university, in Edgmond, near Newport, hosted the prestigious UK Plant Sciences Federation Conference 2015.

It looked at the challenges facing the globe as it has to cope with a rising population.

Closer to home they looked at subjects including insects on plants and diseases that affect trees. This year, 130 plant scientists from around the county descended on Harper Adams for the two-day event.

Professor Simon Leather, a lecturer at Harper Adams who specialises in entomology, the science of insects, spoke about educating the next generation of plant scientists.

He said: "Very few people are going into plant science so we are asking why."

"A lot of things to do with it comes down to exposure. Nobody really gets to do etymology anywhere, we are the only university for example that teaches it as a degree. We need to be able to show plant science is a career open to people. There are careers, jobs and salaries."

"This is a really good venue and I think the whole idea of the conference itself is this idea of getting plant science from all sorts of backgrounds together rather than just individuals disciplines discussing among themselves."

Mimi Tanimoto, of UK Plant and Science Federation and one of the event's organisers, said the idea of the conference was to bring together scientists from different disciplines.

She said: "A lot of science conferences are incredibly specialist."

Climbdown and more time to seek payments

THE Rural Payment Agency is to make paper forms available for farmers and agents to apply for the new Basic Payment Scheme, and the deadline has been extended by a month to June 15.

The announcement was made after the Rural Payments failed to bring the online system up to full functionality in time to meet application deadline. The online system will only need to be used for registration.

Sarah Reece at Berrys has expressed her despair at the situation. "I cannot believe what the RPA has done. So many questions remain unanswered which organisations including the CAAV and NFU are working hard to clarify," she said.

"It is extremely frustrating for us agents as we have been completing mainly online forms since 2011, therefore we will now have to implement an internal checking process of all paper forms, which will have to be photocopied before being delivered to RPA - very time consuming."

"This is all very frustrating - the day of the eclipse will be remembered by me for the day the BPS scheme turned on its head."

The RPA, in announcing the changes admitted that while the core and registration parts of the Rural Payments system are working well, there have been performance problems with the online interface that farmers and agents use.

Farmers and their agents will use established forms and processes to complete their claims by the deadline and the RPA will then input this data on to the system.

The RPA says it has ensured it has the resources it needs to undertake this work on time so that payments can be made to farmers from December 2015.

Apart from registering, farmers will not be asked to enter any further data online now.

Data that has already been entered onto the system has been saved and will be used. Two forms will be available to download from the RPA's website - www.gov.uk. 1 RLE1, which allows claimants to transfer land and entitlements and make changes to their land; 1 BP5, the BPS claim form.

FARMING LATEST

RPA Chief Executive, Mark Grimshaw said: "Having listened to feedback, the RPA will now combine existing forms that farming businesses are used to, with data that the Rural Payments system already has. This means that everyone who is registered and wants to complete a 2015 Basic Payment Scheme claim can do so."

The RPA will email all farmers and agents who have already registered on the Rural Payments website to provide further detail on completing and submitting claims.

For more information contact Berrys on 01743 271697 or email sarah.reece@berrys-bros.com

The Farmers' Union of Wales is urging farmers to start completing their Single Application Forms (SAFs) as soon as possible as the May 15 submission deadline is not being extended in Wales.

The SAF completion process is the single most important form completion exercise being carried out by Welsh farmers since 2004, and the financial repercussions of errors on the forms are severe.

Defra confirmed in March that the deadline for submitting English forms had been extended to June 15 following the collapse of the English online application system and agreement by the EU that extensions would be allowed.

However, Rebecca Evans, Wales Deputy Minister for Farming and Food, announced that the Welsh Government would be sticking with the May 15 deadline as delaying the submission deadline would delay part-payments, thereby causing cash-flow problems for farmers, while also risking the loss of rural development funding.

"This year's form will establish farm payments for the foreseeable future," said FUW head of policy Dr Nick Fenwick.

Farmers now have longer to complete the forms - and can do so manually

Keep dogs on a lead appeal by Sheep Association chief

DOG walkers are being asked to protect newborn lambs around the county by keeping their pets on a lead.

The National Sheep Association has said dogs chasing and attacking sheep is causing a major animal welfare problem on sheep farms across Britain, especially when ewes are heavily pregnant or have young lambs.

With increasing numbers of sheep worrying incidents being reported, NSA chief executive Phil Stocker has called for dog owners to be extra vigilant during the lambing season and to keep their pets on a lead around livestock.

"Despite previous campaigns, the number of reported dog attacks on ewes and lambs continues to rise," Mr Stocker said.

"Our members have told us of some really terrible attacks on their flocks that could be prevented simply by dogs being kept on leads around sheep."

Along with the horrific injuries dogs can cause when they bite sheep, there are additional risks that being chased by a dog can cause. Stress caused by chasing can result in pregnant ewes aborting their lambs, and lambing problems when they come to give birth. Chasing and attacks by dogs can also break the essential bond between a newborn lamb and its mother.

Mr Stocker said: "When lambs are born they create a life-giving bond with their mother. They can identify her within a field full of sheep and know where to get the milk upon which they depend for the first weeks of life."

Abandoned

"If a group of sheep containing very young lambs is chased by a dog, the disruption and stress breaks that bond and can lead to lambs being abandoned, threatening the life of that lamb and causing a great deal of anxiety to the ewe and her young."

"Allowing your dog to worry livestock is a criminal offence and can lead to prosecution and expensive legal fees. Attacks can also result in dogs being destroyed."

A recent survey carried out by NSA indicated that at least half dog worrying incidents occurred in private, in an enclosed field with no footpath, which it says suggests the dogs were either unsupervised or not kept under close control.

Mr Stocker said: "It's possible that many dog owners don't believe their docile pet is capable of causing such damage to livestock. People trust their dogs but it's too late once the animal has chased or attacked sheep."

"We believe the only way to reduce these figures is through education and the enforcement of the regulations. This means encouraging farmers to display signs on footpaths on their land and using the full strength of the law to prosecute owners who dogs worry sheep."

"While we don't want to discourage dog walkers from enjoying the countryside, it's imperative that they make sure their pets are under control. If they chase or attack livestock, the results can be devastating for the farmer and the dog owner."

Ravenglass and Eskdale steam railway in action

Historic Muncaster Castle with views to Scafell Pike

The beautiful coastal hamlet of Ravenglass

A country excursion that's fit for royalty

ONE of the most naturally beautiful regions in England, the Lake District has long inspired the nation.

From William Wordsworth and the Lake Poets to the death of Joe McIntyre in Coronation Street, the Lakes have inspired popular culture as well as bringing in countless tourists with its stunning scenery and welcoming retreats.

Foremost in popularity is, of course, Windermere – the largest lake in the country. But dig a little further afield and there are plenty of fantastic finds spread across Cumbria.

Take, for example, the haven of Ravenglass. Home to roughly 200 residents it is the only coastal settlement in the region and sits on the mouths of three rivers – the Esk, Mite and Irt. Dating back to the Second Century it was an important naval base to the Romans and is steeped in history.

From the visible remains of a Roman bathhouse at the south of the village to the stunning Muncaster Castle lying a mile or so inland, there is plenty to keep you occupied while abandoning the rigors of driving for a couple of days.

Muncaster is a must for anyone visiting the area. It is home to many ghostly tales and strange happenings which add to its intrigue. You can rent it out privately for any function ranging from university reunions to weddings in the most glamorous of settings.

One of the main legends surrounds the wandering, dethroned Henry VI after a defeat in the War of the Roses.

After being given sanctuary at Muncaster, on his leaving he gave his drinking bowl to the Pennington family declaring that as long as it stayed intact they would live and thrive in the place.

There is talk of a haunted bedroom, which needs to be seen before trying to make up your mind, while the legend of Tom Fool and his tenure as jester to the Pennington family landed the word 'tomfoolery' into our language and led to the brewing of a rather scrumptious ale in the area.

But topping all the history is the stunning views northwards over the Eskdale Valley towards Scafell Pike – England's highest mountain. Ruskin described it as 'the gateway to paradise', and standing outside the castle's main entrance you can see exactly why.

The grounds are extensive, hosting many luscious walks, and there is the World Owl Centre – home to an extremely rare Ethiopian eagle owl among its 50 species of owls and other birds of prey.

When your feet are all walked out, Ravenglass hosts three great locations to recharge with food and drink.

The Pennington Hotel restaurant, The Inn @ Ravenglass and The Ratty Arms all serve up tantalising fish dishes and a bevy of locally brewed ales to enjoy by an open fire in the colder months.

With Halloween proving a hugely popular pull at Muncaster, all the pubs join in the festivities through creative decorations designed to get a scream or two from unsuspecting customers.

Other than the impressive Muncaster and the historic Ravenglass & Eskdale Steam Railway that provides transport inland to Dalegarth and Boot, there is no real need to pay entry to an attraction.

Family-friendly and with most hotels, pubs and restaurants welcoming dogs it is easy to ease the days away exploring the various peaks and fells to see what natural delights are to be found.

Once you have seen the coast it is worth heading inland to see what else the Lakes have to offer. If the tourist-orientated Windermere isn't quite to your taste then you can do much worse than head north through Kirkstone Pass towards Ullswater – the second largest expanse of water.

If a country break is what you require then look no further.

Some of the spectacular scenery you will see if you visit the Lake District

Café culture and an abundance of perfect beaches

THERE are few finer spring destinations than Pembrokeshire.

With millions of daffodils painting the landscape yellow and spring lambs in the field, it's truly idyllic. Located on the south west tip of Wales, Pembrokeshire is one of the most beautiful spots in the British Isles.

The county comprises Pembrokeshire Coast National Park, the only one of its kind in the UK. Pembrokeshire's beaches are to die for and have won numerous accolades, including International Blue Flag, Green Coast and Seaside Awards. The county's southern extremity is nicknamed Little England Beyond Wales.

There are numerous locations for visitors, including the picturesque Saundersfoot, Broad Haven South, Tenby, Narberth and St David's.

Where to stay: From guest houses and B&Bs to self-catering cottages and caravans, and from bunk houses and farms to spas and deluxe hotels, Pembrokeshire has it all. Extensive listings at www.visitpembrokeshire.com

What to do: Get away, turn off, tune out and relax. Pembrokeshire feels as though it's miles from the hustle and bustle of modern life.

The county boasts exceptional wildlife and is an internationally important seabird breeding site.

The landscape is inspiring, with prehistoric sites and, remarkably, a prehistoric quarry from which the Stonehenge stones were thought to have been quarried.

Outdoor pursuits include kite surfing, horse riding, golf, powerboating, walking, mountain biking and walking are all popular. Pembrokeshire is intrinsically arty and there are potters, festivals and numerous galleries and craft outlets in addition to museums.

Where to eat/drink: Café culture is alive and well. Stop off at the Pebbles Yard Gallery and Espresso Bar, in St David's, which showcases the photographs by locally-based, world photographer Jacki Sime. Italian coffee, smoothies, homemade cakes and soup together with paninis, pittas, wholemeal sandwiches and salads are all freshly prepared to order. How to get there: There are no motorways, though roads in Pembrokeshire have been significantly improved.

Crowds flock to vehicle show

Report by Rebecca King

THOUSANDS of people gathered for a festival celebrating one of the best-known vehicles ever to take to the road – the Volkswagen camper van. The Bus Types VW Show, held at Oswestry Showground, saw enthusiasts from across the country come together to show off their vehicles.

The three-day event at the weekend featured displays, a trade and auto jumble sale and live entertainment in the evenings. The event was a true celebration of the iconic vehicle.

First built in the 1950s, the van has received numerous nicknames worldwide, including the "microbus", "minibus", and, because of its popularity during the counterculture movement of the 1960s, "Hippie van".

An event spokesman said: "It went really well, the event was a really good one."

"We haven't counted up the numbers yet but these shows always see thousands of people and we had a lot here."

"It was good. We had people coming to buy parts, people coming to show their vans and all sorts.

"We get mainly enthusiasts who want to come and bring their van to this kind of event and we had more than 180 trade stalls as well."

"They sold parts, memorabilia and all sorts of VW things."

"But people don't have to have the vans to come, a lot of people like to look around them."

"We do get quite a lot of rare models here and people who spend a lot of time on their vans."

"Another part of the event is the entertainment – people camp over quite a lot of the time so we have entertainment in the evening and live bands for people to enjoy."

"It was a really successful show, we are really pleased with how it has gone."

The event also saw trophies awarded, a fancy dress party, a fun fair and children's entertainment.

Among the visitors to the Bus Types VW Show was Sarah Jones from Art of Classic, Manchester, who spent a day drawing some of the classic vehicles.

Army units in 'battle' over trophy from castle

The "pineapple" architectural feature – seen here as the castle is blown up – has survived to this day WHEN Tong Castle was blown up by the Army in the 1950s there was, it appears, a battle between two military units to claim a trophy from the rubble – a "pineapple".

In the end, neither got to keep the distinctive ornamental stone. Instead, it was retrieved by a local farmer – and still exists to this day.

"It's in my garden, just as a garden ornament," a pensioner farmer told us after our recent feature about the dramatic destruction of Tong Castle brought back memories for him.

And he was also able to provide details of a tragedy which led to the demolition of the castle, which happened in July 1954.

The gentleman who contacted us lived in Tong at the time, being the son of a local farmer, but now lives in Staffordshire. However, he asked not to be named.

"I remember Tong Castle from my childhood. It was not really a military castle, but a folly, I suppose, that was put up as a mansion."

First, the sandstone "pineapple". It can be seen in one of the photos we published sticking out as an ornamental feature on the top of the building.

"That was the crowning glory. That's in our garden. It's very weathered now but it is shaped and carved to appear to be a pineapple. The two Army units were the Royal Engineers, and I can't remember the other, but they had a dispute about who should claim this trophy. The commanding officer said that neither of them should do so, so they left it behind and bowled it down the bank to the bottom, from where we recovered it. I think we claimed it at the time. It's rather sinful of us, but it was 1954.

"The thing is about a quarter of a ton in weight." Our contributor also told of the accident in which a local lad lost his life as a result of a fall while climbing the ruins.

"His name was Michael Twomey. I remember him. His father was Irish and a waggoner. He lived at Tong Park. These lads were larking about. Only the front facade was still there. Other lads who were with him said he had got up somewhere near the top. Your photograph was taken from the front, and they were climbing up in the rear. Most of the rear was demolished. I think there might have been remnants of staircases. It's such a long time ago.

"It fascinated these lads and they decided to climb up. He was younger than me, 16 or 17, something like that.

"The sad thing is that when he fell he was not killed outright. He was hardly even knocked unconscious, but he was paralysed after the fall and lingered for many months in hospital. They were not able to repair his injury. These days medical skills are far better.

"It was only a year or so before the castle was blown up and was the justification for blowing it up. It was regarded as a dangerous ruin, which it patently was. You couldn't stop these lads going and larking about there. It was on Lord Bradford's land and he thought there was no architectural interest in this thing and it was better for the safety of all that it was brought to the ground.

"It was a sad thing for the family. He was a completely decent lad in every way. The witnesses said that as he was climbing up a loose stone, or sandstone, slipped away from under his feet and he hadn't got enough of a hand hold to prevent himself falling. He fell from quite a height though rubble partly broke his fall."

The end of the story – children from Marton School at a farewell service in July 1984

Rebellion which made national headlines

THE village of Marton, south west of Shrewsbury, was an unlikely place for a rebellion, but in 1949 villagers rose up in a revolt which was to last four years and made national headlines and created a stir in Whitehall.

And the issue which sparked it was as topical today as it was then – the closure of the village school.

When Shropshire education committee decided to close Marton Church of England School because of falling numbers, the villagers wouldn't wear it.

Instead, they hired their own teacher and set up what was dubbed Marton Rebel School.

At first it was in the old vicarage, before settling in the Congregational Hall – after the fracas the hall became the village hall.

For four years, from 1949 to 1953, the villagers ran an independent school, organising functions like coffee evenings, rummage sales, whist drives, and prize draws to pay the teacher – who received £3 a week – and for books, equipment and maintenance.

Battle

The biggest headache the campaigners faced was getting teachers, and for a while there was quite a turnover.

In the last two years the teacher was Mrs Muriel Taylor, nee Rowlands, of Leighton, near Welshpool, and as she could not drive, the parents gave her a lift to and from the school every day.

All the time, as the rebel school continued to operate in the Congregational Hall, campaigners were lobbying for the reopening of the "real" school which lay empty just a stone's throw away.

The villagers won the battle but ultimately, as anybody in Marton today will be able to tell you, lost the war.

In a face-saving compromise, and apparently under pressure from the Government, the county council announced in October 1953 that Marton School would reopen, but as an annexe to Chirbury School, with a

MEMORY LANE

Report by Toby Neal

Mrs Davies at Chirbury as headteacher of both schools.

Not everybody in Marton was happy, but it was the best deal they could get.

The upshot was that in 1954 Marton School was reopened as an annexe to Chirbury.

And when Mrs Davies retired in 1968, the Marton villagers asked the county council for their school's independence once more, which was granted with Mrs White as head-teacher.

The story came to an end on July 20, 1984, when, with comparatively little fuss, Marton School finally closed for good, having enjoyed a 30-year reprieve.

By that time there were 23 pupils, aged five to 11.

One of the campaigners of that big village effort of over 60 years ago was Mrs Hilda Francis, whose children Pam and John both went to the rebel school.

Recalling those days, speaking 10 years ago, she said: "We all pulled together and worked jolly hard for the sake of our children."

"All the community was up in arms. In a small rural area, when a school is closed, the community disappears."

She was not certain how many pupils were at the school at the time of its original closure in 1949, but thought it was in the low 20s.

Then it had two staff, one teaching children up to 11, and the other being the infant teacher.

She recalled that the rebel school started off with about 20 pupils, although one family "defected" and went by car to Chirbury which saw the numbers drop.

Her husband Arthur was also active in the campaign, and would sell draw tickets in the market on Mondays.

"One person said to him: 'I've bought enough tickets to build a new school, never mind fund it.'"

Putting flesh on the bones in the tale of bodies in trench

THANKS to David Hull of Market Drayton, we're starting to put some flesh on the bones of a tale of bodies from the Battle of Blore Heath being discovered by workmen in the town over 50 years ago.

And from his account, a lot of mythology has become woven into the story over the years.

In a feature the other day, we told how workmen laying a water main near Salisbury Hill uncovered five skeletons which, it was surmised, were victims of the battle in 1459.

They were supposedly reburied without any undue fuss. Mr Hull thinks he is probably the only person left who knows the truth.

"I was there, on site. Most of the story you published is not correct," said Mr Hull, who is now 70 and lives in Farcroft Drive, although at the time was living in Shrewsbury Road.

"It was a water main that we were laying and it was only three feet deep. There were not five bodies at all. At a maximum, there were two.

"Me and another fellow, Bill Ellis, were digging a trench to lay a water pipe up the site. It was half way up on the right hand side of the footpath in Salisbury Hill View. It must have been after 1962 and could have been 1963 to 1964. I would have been 17 or 18 and was working for a firm called John Caldicott, who used to do the work for Market Drayton Water Company.

"We were laying the main and came across the body. The guy kept chucking the bones out onto the pile of rubble. We didn't know it was a body until we got to the head. It was a crushed skull. I went for a bag and put the bones in a barrow. He was left by the site office for two or three days and then just disappeared.

"I assume the police came and fetched it and I never heard any more about it.

"There was definitely one whole one. There certainly weren't five. We were on site all week or for a fortnight and nothing more was found to my knowledge. We didn't think too much of it. When we were digging this trench it was all sand, so it was all done by hand with shovels and so on. When we realised what we had found I went to the site office to tell them. Nobody was interested, to be honest. I grabbed a barrow and put him in."

Mr Hull said he was told later on that the skeleton was from the Battle of Blore Heath.

"His skull was pretty flat. He had a good set of teeth, that's all I can tell you."

Our story was the first time he had seen anything mentioned about the find.

"There was talk that there was a body found there in full armour, which is not true."

The discovery had come during the building of new bungalows and Mr Hull says he uses the footpath where the bones were found on most days.

"I've told many people what happened that day. Nobody took it up. This is the first I've seen of it."

Perfect time to witness life among the lily pads

BEING a naturalist in Shropshire, one is spoilt for choice when it comes to birds.

There are dozens of species and they are coming and going all the time. In the summer, insects are bountiful and it is possible to seek out many different kinds of mammal from small to large at any time of the year. However as someone who has a real passion for herpetofauna, we are, it must be admitted, slightly lacking in diversity; then again, so is the whole UK.

Reptiles and amphibians, those creatures that make up a group known as herptiles, are widespread in Britain, but localised in their populations; thus they can be hard to see.

But in April there is no excuse for not getting acquainted with our commonest member of the group, the common frog. You may well have seen these well-known yet extraordinary animals lurking in your garden pond of late and many a primary school pupil will know that now is the time to see them spawning and watch the tadpoles grow through the process of metamorphosis.

Whenever I am on holiday in warmer and far off lands, it is the reptiles and amphibians that really eject me from me beach chair and lure me into the tropical forests, but of course one can get just as much pleasure from watching our own species of herps. We all know about the frog's life cycle and its exceptional ability to survive our occasionally harsh winters at the bottom of ponds, encased in mud and the like, but how about its everyday life? Amphibians have been on earth for at least the last 250 million years.

The name of this class of animals reflects the fact that while the adults are largely terrestrial, they must return to the water to breed. This is because the eggs are unprotected by a shell and would therefore dry out if laid on land.

But to do this the adults of course must survive this far (two to three years until they reach breeding age). The common frog is a remarkably variable animal. Individuals range from colour from greens and browns right through to yellows and oranges, but they may not always appear so.

Just like tropical chameleons, they can change to tone of their skin depending on their environment. So a light orange frog one day, may well be a greenish yellow the next. Also like a chameleon, our frogs will expel their tongues from their mouths in a flash to catch their invertebrate prey; quite a sight if you're patient and lucky enough to see it.

But for now we can perhaps be content to watch them laying their eggs and croaking to each other. Frogs are on the decline and need all the help they can get, so a small pond in the back garden is ideal. Often a night-time sortie with a torch at this time of the year will pick out the males competing for females.

A common frog photographed in Ben's garden pond

The croaking you may be able to hear are the males trying to attract a mate and they can do so even underwater. Successful males cling onto the back of the female and fertilise the eggs as the female lays them. This process is known as external fertilisation. Huge numbers of eggs are laid, but few of them will ever reach adulthood. A large communal clump of spawn may contain up to and over 25,000 eggs, but if 20 of those embryos survive into breeding age, the females will have done well. Ben's Summer Art Safari is filling up. Check out benwaddams.com for details.

More workers hired by area's health bosses

MORE than 80 nurses have been recruited from overseas to work in Shropshire's hospitals.

It comes as part of a recruitment drive to fill staff nurse vacancies and reduce the use of expensive agency or temporary staff at the Royal Shrewsbury Hospital and Princess Royal Hospital in Telford.

A total of more than 150 new staff nurses, including those from abroad, and health care assistants (HCAs) have been recruited to work at Shropshire's two acute hospitals in the last couple of months.

The new health staff will work at either of the two hospitals and some have already taken up their posts.

Recruits hired at home and abroad in recent months include around 100 staff nurses and around 70 health care assistants, most of which are on permanent contracts, with the rest recruited for the hospitals' bank of temporary staff.

Of these, 72 staff nurses were hired from the Philippines, a further 17 from recruitment events at RSH earlier this month, eight from Italy and a further two from Denmark.

All of the recent 69 HCA appointments were recruited following information days held at RSH and PRH earlier this year. Recruitment, specifically for registered nurses, will continue with weekly interviews underway among other initiatives. Trusts across England and Wales are increasingly resorting to recruiting nurses from overseas because there are not enough British-trained applicants to fill places, with some interviewed by Skype.

Sarah Bloomfield, director of nursing and quality at The Shrewsbury and Telford Hospital NHS Trust, said: "Our staff nurses and health care assistants deliver excellent care to our patients at both RSH and PRH.

"Our recruitment has focused on ensuring our new recruits display the caring and compassionate qualities we rightly require to provide the highest standard of care possible for our patients.

"We have said consistently that we want to recruit more nurses to reduce our reliance on agency and temporary staff. Our trust is not alone – the situation is reflected nationally – so we have been looking at a number of innovations we can introduce to recruit staff locally, across the UK and overseas. We'll continue our efforts to ensure that over the coming months we will see more permanent staff on our wards as our new starters get settled in, which will mean better continuity of care and more support for ward teams."

Slicker Vitara will challenge

By Anthony Martyn

It's good to see the Vitara badge being rehabilitated after the indignities it suffered at the hands of fashion in the early nineties. You'll probably shudder as you recall those widewheelarched horrors, usually so mercilessly colour-keyed in white that it looked as if they'd emerged from a peroxide bath.

The windsurfing or rollerblading rhino on the spare wheel cover and the booming stereo from within were all rather 'of their time'. The easy thing to have done after suffering these ministrations would have been to quietly drop the Vitara name and think up a new badge for their next generation of compact crossovers but Suzuki stuck with it, probably to their cost, in this country at least. As the market grew more sophisticated, Suzuki was left behind.

The thing is, the Grand Vitaras it subsequently built were actually pretty good. Sure, they were short of a bit of polish, but they were tough, reliable and practical. Then came the Nissan Qashqai. It hogged that particular section of the market and the Grand Vitara was doomed. Suzuki's back in the crossover segment with a smaller and slicker offering. The Vitara is back.

The mechanicals aren't anything too surprising, shared as they are with the existing SX-4 S-Cross. That means buyers get to choose between either a 1.6-litre petrol engine or a much preferable Fiat-sourced 118bhp 1.6 diesel, both being offered in front or four-wheel drive guises. The petrol engine is fitted with a five-speed manual gearbox as standard with an optional CVT transmission also offered. Go diesel and you get a six-speed manual 'box. The short overhangs will help with off-roading but the 185mm ground clearance isn't generous.

The ALLGRIP four-wheel-drive transmission features an electronically controlled clutch pack, controlled by a four-position switch on the centre console. Choose 'Auto' and it'll drive the front wheels unless slip is detected, whereupon the rear wheels are pressed into action. 'Sport' diverts up to 20 per cent of torque to the rear wheels to give livelier handling. 'Snow' offers permanent four-wheel drive with the system choosing how much torque to split front and rear, while 'Lock' splits torque equally between front and rear.

With tight proportions and a front end that has more than a hint of current Land Rover design, the Vitara is an assured piece of design. There's also a blacked-out floating glasshouse, heavily sculpted flanks and a very neat taillamp finish.

Suzuki cabins have long been the marque's weak link but this Vitara shows the company pulling its socks up a bit. Okay, so the idea of body-coloured metal across the dash isn't a new one (many of you will recall the Fiat Coupe mining that trend way back in '93) but Suzuki also offers chrome around the gearlever and door trims, plus an analogue clock. It's by no means a large vehicle, breaking the tape at just over four metres long, but still features a features a 375-litre boot.

Prices start at around £14,000 for the entry-level 1.6-litre petrol, but you'll need a £20,000 budget for the petrol ALLGRIP 4WD version. 1.6 DDiS diesel model pricing starts at around £17,000. All variants get seven airbags, 16-inch alloy wheels, a DAB Radio with USB and Bluetooth connectivity, cruise control with a speed limiter, auto air conditioning, front and rear electric windows and projector headlamps.

The Vitara's CO2 emissions are low thanks to the use of high tensile steel and other weight saving measures in the body plus an Engine Auto Stop Start system which shuts down the engine when stationary.

The CO2 emissions for the petrol engine with two wheel drive/manual transmission are 123g/km and 127g/km for the petrol engine with two-wheel drive / six-speed automatic transmission. Four-wheel drive is typically seen as detrimental to fuel economy and emissions performance. By contrast, Suzuki's ALLGRIP system enables CO2 emissions that are remarkably low for a four-wheel drive SUV, with figures of 130g/km with five-speed manual transmission and 131g/km with six-speed automatic transmission.

SEAT SUV is set for success

By Graham Breeze

With SEAT sales in the UK going through the roof, the timing looks perfect for the company to move into the SUV sector and the newly launched Leon X-Perience is a taste of things to come.

The company is planning a range of three SUVs over the next few years and while the name of the new model doesn't roll off the tongue too well it looks certain to be another big success.

The X-Perience is not a 'stand-out in the crowd' offering and its raised four-wheel drive set-up is a familiar look, but for the motorist looking for more space and some off-road ability it really fits the bill.

Leon was a great success in 2014, delivering 154,000 units, which was 49.9 per cent more than in 2013, making it the brand's best-selling model, and surpassing the Ibiza for the first time ever.

Now the first estate from the Leon family marries style, technology and driving dynamics with a 587-litre boot and four-wheel drive ability. Though don't be fooled into thinking this is an off-roader because there are limits.

The car runs in two-wheel drive mode for most of the time but if its intelligent system detects a slippery surface or increased weight the all-wheel drive system kicks in seamlessly – and I mean seamlessly.

On test was the 2.0TDi 150PS six-speed manual and it was virtually impossible to tell when the traction control system was telling the rear wheels to join in.

Separate

The SE model is identified by 18in alloys and black roof rails to separate it from the Leon family, along with twin exhausts and the X-Perience logo.

This model also gets a 'real spare wheel, a technology pack which includes a DAB radio, navigation system and a full LED headlight pack. You also get a convenience pack, elect mirrors, front sports seats with leather trim, a six-inch colour touch screen control system, iPod connectivity and the ability to select your own driving profile.

The test car had an on-the-road tag of £26,370 but cruise control, an improved sound system and rear air bags added to the price to total £28,285.

'It will be cheap enough to run too with advanced technologies meaning you can expect to get an average of 57.6mpg'

Surely the rear airbags should be standard?

This model is no slouch either with a top speed of 129mph and 0-62 in 8.7seconds. It will be cheap enough to run too with advanced technologies meaning you can expect to get an average of 57.6mpg with CO2 emissions of 129g/km.

Inside there's ample room for five and when you fold the splitting back seats there's enough space to cope with most family or sporting demands.

So who will buy this new arrival? SEAT has its eyes on other brand buyers who will be in the ABC1 bracket with children and an average age of 34 to 44.

They will come from the adventurous and young spirited group with a high proportion interested in outdoor sports such as cycling.

SEAT expects a 50/50 split between retail and fleet buyers and is looking for the X-Perience to account for eight per cent of all Leon ST sales. The 2.0TDi on test should be the best seller.

St Martins look good to secure promotion

ST MARTINS stayed firmly on the promotion trail in the West Midlands League division one after pulling off a fine 1-0 win at leaders Bromyard Town, writes JOHN BRIDGWATER.

Victory sees the Saints one point off the summit with two fixtures remaining, although they have played two more games than the pacesetters.

While chances of lifting the title could prove a tall order, Ryan Butcher's side look well placed for promotion as they are five points clear in second spot.

They now have two remaining games, both away to Penncroft on Saturday and Wrens Nest the following week, and victories in those would secure a top-two finish and likely promotion to the premier division.

Despite making the trip south with a depleted line-up, which included manager Butcher on the bench, St Martins were up for the challenge as they went close to taking the lead when Jamie Hands fired wide after a good move down the right involving Karl Bailey and Shawn Melusi.

Bromyard, who relied heavily on long balls, almost got their noses in front five minutes before half time when Dorian Culling forced keeper George Austin into a fine save to tip the ball over the bar.

Early in the second half, Melusi had a goal harshly ruled out for offside while a 55th minute free kick from Shin Miah was deflected onto the bar off the head of a defender.

But the Saints made the breakthrough with five minutes remaining as Hands played in Melusi who tucked the ball into the net, before the visitors saw out the remaining minutes to claim a vital win.

High fives as Juniors hit the goal trail

RUNNERS-UP Llanymynech Juniors under-13s finished a successful Shropshire Junior League season with a 5-1 win at Wem.

Lloyd Owen opened the door with a superb 20-yard strike and, despite the home side levelling things up, Llan ran out convincing winners with further goals from Lloyd Edwards, Tom Williams and a brace from Luke Jones.

It was a good solid performance to finish the season that produced seven wins and three losses.

Llan's under-15s also ended with a victory, defeating Worthen 4-2 through a hat-trick from Byron Edwards and one from Warren Roberts.

The under-16s entertained Worthen at Foxen Manor in their last home fixture of the season and came away with a 2-2 draw with Josh Biggs (penalty) and Nathan Buckley the goalscorers while man of the match was goalkeeper Joe Conde.

The under-eights went down 8-3 at home to Up and Coming Eagles.

Gr-eight win as Guilsfield hit goal trail

GUILSFIELD reserves kept their flag flying in the Montgomeryshire League Consolation Cup with an 8-1 blitz against Maesyrhandir.

Victory was built on a fine first half display that brought six goals before two further strikes were added in the second half to rub salt into the wounds of the second division visitors.

George Minshall led the way with a hat-trick. Rhidian Morris netted a brace with Luke Francis, Phil Turnbull and Sam Griffiths also getting on the scoresheet.

Seven up sees Ladies in cup final

THE New Saints ladies eased through to the final of the West Midlands Premier League Cup with a comfortable 7-0 passage against Leamington Ladies – and now meet title rivals Birmingham and West Midlands Police.

The Saints started the brighter of the two sides at the New Windmill ground as they posed some early problems, and were in front after 10 minutes when some terrific build-up play saw Sam Berry slot into the net.

But they didn't look too convincing after that as keeper Charlotte Edmunds was called upon to make a double save to ensure the Shropshire side stayed ahead at the break.

The Saints, however, looked a completely different side in the second half and within one minute of the re-start Emily Ridge doubled the lead after breaking through the defence to double the lead.

Ridge then netted her second of the afternoon before completing a quick fire hat-trick, her 33rd goal of the season, to put TNS in total charge.

They soon had their fifth goal when a cross from the right hand side found Kelly Dovaston who produced a neat finish into the bottom left hand corner for her first senior goal.

Sophie Edwards then added her side's sixth goal with 13 minutes to go, and Berry completed the scoring two minutes from time with her second of the game.

The Saints now progress to the Premier League Cup final where they meet fellow high fliers Birmingham and West Midlands Police at Stone Dominoes FC on Sunday, May 24.

Before then, the two sides come face to face in a potential league title decider at Shrewsbury College on Sunday (2.30pm).

Treble-chasing TNS are finally beaten

FOOTBALL by John Bridgwater

Airbus UK 1 The New Saints 0
THE New Saints tasted defeat for the first time this season after Airbus UK avenged their recent Welsh Cup semi-final exit with a famous win at the Hollingsworth Group Stadium.

Glenn Rule's strike through a crowded box three minutes into the second half proved enough to separate the sides, giving the Wing-makers their first ever Welsh Premier success over the all-concurring Saints.

Victory kept alive Airbus' hopes of Europa League qualification this term while it denied TNS the chance of rewriting the history books as their proud unbeaten record finally came to an end with just two games remaining.

But the Saints still have the 'consolation' of having won two trophies – and have the domestic treble firmly in their sights in next month's Welsh Cup final at Newtown.

Boss Craig Harrison said: "It was not the result we wanted, but to have our first defeat in our 43rd game of the season is an outstanding achievement by everyone at the club.

Proud

"We can be proud of everything we have done, winning the League and the Word Cup, and we've still got the Welsh Cup final to come. The run starts again next week."

Airbus sounded a warning when Ryan Wade drilled a shot inches wide. Another Field shot was deflected for a corner before TNS had their first attempt on goal. Kai Edwards sending a snap shot well wide. TNS were rarely threatening although an off-balance Aeron Edwards managed a shot which flew well away from a cross by Chris Marriott, who then fired straight at keeper James Coates from 20 yards as the first half came to a close.

However, it was Airbus who made what proved a crucial breakthrough three minutes into the second period when Rule latched onto a loose ball before smashing his 16-yard volley through a crowd of players past Harrison.

Quigley had a couple of chances for the Saints, the striker seeing a shot punched away by keeper James Coates. TNS were in no mood to surrender their proud unbeaten record without a fight, Phil Baker heading over while Quigley almost levelled when firing just past the post.

But it wasn't the Saints' day – with five minutes remaining, Kai Edwards found himself in space inside the box but shot straight at Coates with the goal at his mercy.

Morda merrier after win double

Morda United's Emlyn Williams shields the ball from a Forden defender during the 2-1 away victory

NEWLY-CROWNED champions Morda United proved their worth with two away victories at Waterloo Rovers Colts and Forden United to underline their credentials in the JT Hughes Montgomeryshire League division two.

First they saw off Waterloo 2-0, with both goals coming in the first half, with Emlyn Williams forcing an own goal then hitting the second himself as United overcame some strong early resistance from a changed home side.

Morda had gone into the clash in buoyant mood having been confirmed as league champion just two days earlier.

Waterloo, though, were keen to challenge the league's top team with some early challenges but visiting keeper Josh Thomas commanded his goal with some crisp catches before Williams showed why he is the club's top goal scorer, robbing a home defender before going close with a cross.

It was another cross from Williams which opened the scoring when a Rovers defender sliced the ball into his own net on 17 minutes before Williams then hit the second himself when firing home after a neat turn from a Harry Davies cross.

Morda took control of the remainder of the game with Keith Meredith and substitute Liam Edwards constantly tormenting the home defence.

Four days later, Morda continued the winning ways when running out 2-1 victors at Forden United despite missing several players due to work commitments that saw them make the trip with just 11 players.

However goals either side of half time from Williams and Aled Davies were enough to secure all of the points, despite a consolation goal for Forden from James Watkins.

On Wednesday Morda travelled to face Llanfyllin Town in the Consolation Cup before completing their league programme on Friday away to Kerry reserves where they will be presented with the league trophies.

Llanfair on brink of title after point

the lead following a defensive blunder five minutes into the second period when a Matty Evans through ball bounced over the keeper.

A terrific run by the impressive Iwan Matthews who set up Endaf Owens to make it 3-0 on 57 minutes, and more good work by Matthews saw Iain Edmunds fire against the post moments later. But Edmunds was not to be denied when finding the net after being set up by Matthews who then himself got on the scoresheet himself on 78 minutes.

Player boss Marc Griffiths completed the scoring from Dan Kelly's pass, taking Llan to within one point of third placed CARNO who were 2-1 winners at depleted WATERLOO ROVERS.

Without several regulars, Rovers more than matched their visitors in a goalless first half before going behind to two quickfire goals after the break from Ashley Owen and Andy Evans. But they reduced the arrears through Ian MacLeod, but the reply came too late to rescue a point.

Mid-table WELSHPOOL drew 1-1 at home to fifth placed Bow Street at Maesdyre after spurning a penalty, while Tywyn Bryncrug picked up a useful point in their deadlock at home to Aberaeron.

Earlier in the week, Llanfair United booked their place in the semi-final of the Spar Mid Wales League Cup with a 1-0 home win one Kerry, Dan Jones notching their only goal of the tie.

They will now renew acquaintance with title rivals Penrhynoch who were comfortable 4-0 winners over Tywyn Bryncrug, Josh Shaw firing a hat-trick, one from the penalty spot, and Mattie Davies completing the scoring at the death. In the other semi-final, Llanrhaeadr – who defeated Waterloo Rovers in a 5-4 thriller – will meet Bow Street, who were 3-2 winners over Montgomery.

BERRIEW are heading for relegation from the first division in the wake of their 3-0 home defeat to Rhosgoch in their last game that left them in the bottom two places.

FOUR CROSSES remain just above on goal difference after their 4-3 home defeat against Waterloo Rovers who took the spoils through Neil Pryce, a Will Pritchard penalty, Ricky Litchfield and a late Ian MacLeod header.

In division two, Presteigne edged out Penybont 2-1 with goals from Keiran Lusher and Callum Matthews, while Abermule consolidated third spot with a 4-2 home victory over already promoted Hay St Mary's. Kerry went down 1-0 at home to Borth in the other second division action.

Depleted Oswestry are beaten at leaders

DEPLETED FC Oswestry Town failed to halt Telford Juniors' title charge in the Mercian Regional League premier division as they succumbed 4-1 to the leaders in the top of the table clash.

Victory saw the Telford side crowned champions, but second placed Town still have a good chance of claiming runners-up spot – although six teams in all are still in contention.

A brace from Alex Nolan along with goals from Tom White and Duane Upton secured the spoils for Telford Juniors, with Calum Williams responding from the penalty spot for the Oswestry-based side.

Town travelled to the champions elect with a weakened squad and paid the price as the home side took an early lead when the wind carried a cross in to the top corner, leaving Town keeper no chance.

But the visitors hit back when Al Morris won a penalty which was slotted home by Calum Williams.

The scores were level at the break with Town controlling the first half and the visitors still held the upper hand after the interval until the last 20 minutes when the home side took advantage of some tiring players to score three unanswered goals to secure the league title.

Nick Maguire's men look to bounce back next week away at Prees on Saturday (3pm) as they look to maintain their pursuit of runners up spot.

In division two, ST MARTINS VILLAGE hit the goal trail as they ran out 15-0 victors against whipping boys Denso.

Sue success at Welshpool

SUE Shemilt won the Seniors Charity Cup with 38 points at Welshpool Golf Club.

She mastered difficult conditions on The Goffa course to narrowly beat Phil Jones on the back nine countback. In third place was John Painter with 37.

The day raised £183 for the captain's charity which is the Wales Air Ambulance.

Last Thursday, the seniors were triumphant in their inaugural match against Lakeside, beating the visitors 51-1. The return match will be held at Lakeside on June 11.

Criftins top after fine away win

CRIFTINS A are the early leaders of the Oswestry and District Bowling League Division one after maintaining their fine start with a stunning 10-0 away win at Cynwyd A.

Dave Edwards led the way with a 21-12 card in the 40 (168-128) shots victory that took his side three points clear at the top. Tom Griffiths and Gary Wilkie both won to 14. By contrast, WHITTINGTON A's slow start continued as they went down 6-4 (142-131) at home to Corwen A.

After losing their opening encounter at Church A the week before, the villagers toiled in their first outing on home soil with their best wins coming from Mel Morris and Mike Brunt to 12 and 14 respectively. CHURCH A are still unbeaten after securing a creditable 5-5 draw at Overton A, but it could have been even better after the visitors were edged out by six shots (147-141) to deny them the outright win.

Phil Laker, a new recruit from George, and Steve Lewis both won to 13. Jamie Waugh, another new arrival from Ye Olde Crofte, notched his second win of the campaign to 18.

Defending champions Johnstown A were 7-3 victors at Chirk A, taking the aggregate by 10 (139-129) to consolidate joint second spot.

Elsewhere, Ruabon A were 6-4 (153-139) home victors against Ceiriog Valley A, while newcomers Llangollen A notched a 6-4 verdict at Flexsys A, taking the aggregate by 10 (149-139).

CHURCH B sounded a warning in division two after sweeping aside visiting LLANRHAEADR A 9-1 (164-112).

Graham Mansfield (21-7) bagged the coppers, with Merv Weaver (21-9) and Emrys Jones (21-10) also weighing in, with Steve Jones (21-17) claiming a consolation for the visitors.

LLANMYNECH A suffered their first loss after being allowed 8-2 (143-116) at YE OLDE CROFTE A who moved up to second.

Oswestry take wing to defeat Manxmen

RUGBY UNION by John Bridgwater

OSWESTRY ended the season in memorable fashion with a 29-10 victory on the Isle of Man against Vagabonds in South Lanes and Cheshire Two.

After swamping lowly Ashton-on-Mersey 72-3 the previous week to guarantee a fourth-place finish, they made the trip to Douglas in good spirits.

Despite a 7.30am start for a flight out of Liverpool, the Eagles were soon in the ascendancy to shock their hosts. A well-worked try in the corner by James Booth gave them the lead, with Fin Grogan converting to make the score 7-0 within two minutes of the start.

Vagabonds, whose 200-strong band of supporters were stunned into silence, upped their game to penetrate the Oswestry defence with quick ball from their talented backs and reduced the deficit with an excellent try from the winger in the corner.

The next 15 minutes saw the visitors respond with some superb rugby as they pinned back the Vagabonds, with the pack making inroads into the home line.

Scrum-half Hamish Fuller provided plenty of quick ball for fly-half Grogan to lay off sweet passes to centre Andy Merrett. He in turn probed the line along with fellow backs Gaz Hughes, Nick Clay, Luca Owen-Youens and Nick Howland as the forwards recycled the ball.

Launch

Continuous pressure on the home pack eventually saw a Vagabonds player sin-binned for hands in the ruck, Grogan kicking the penalty to make it 10-5.

Oswestry then produced arguably the best-worked try of the match to open up a 17-5 advantage.

Quick ball from the ruck saw Fuller launch a backs passing move, Clay picking up the loose ball to dart through before a superb pass found Owen-Youens who had the strength to fend off three defenders and score. Grogan converted.

Mike Keaveney and Luke Roberts both came off at half-time, replaced by Guy Roberts and Tom Keaveney to keep the Oswestry pack firing. An injury to centre Merrett also saw hard-tackling Sam Wright come on to give a man-of-the-match display.

Vagabonds worked hard to find a way through, only to be repelled by strong defence.

Then, from a line-out on the home five-metre line, Oswestry stole the ball and drove over with Jamie Luckett touching down, Grogan again converting.

Vagabonds kept themselves in touch with an unconverted try when powering over from a quick penalty. But the visitors dominated possession in the last 10 minutes and had the last word with a terrific try from Clay, who darted and weaved his way to the corner.

"It was a fantastic finish to a magnificent game," said first team manager Martin Ord.

COBRA back row Rhodri Evans ties up the loose ball with scrum half Andrew Price behind and (below) second row Bryn Edwards looks to shake off the close attentions of a Pwllheli tackler with (from left): prop Ashley Padgett, hooker Stephen Isaac and Rhodri Evans

COBRA had a day to forget after suffering a crushing 76-3 defeat at high-flying Pwllheli to dampen their spirits in the Swalec Welsh Rugby League division one (north).

Having guaranteed safety a few weeks back, the Meifod side made the testing trip with a severely depleted side - and it showed as the Seaside's ran riot in the sunshine to stay on course for the title.

Llew Williams kicked a first half penalty for the visitors who had a couple of other chances but, for most part, it was backs to the wall as Pwllheli called the tune with a clinical display.

After conceding several tries late on, the final score was somewhat harsh on COBRA whose makeshift team included a couple of forwards in the back line, and coach James Watkin on the bench.

However, they will be looking to finish the season on a positive note with a stronger side at their disposal when they host another of the title-chasers, Nant Conwy, in their last game - with the date to be confirmed.

WELSHPOOL who had no action in division three (north) last week, are due to return to duty at home to Porthmadog on Saturday before completing the season against struggling visitors Holyhead the following week.

Lion fail to roar in big defeat on their travels

BLACK LION, relegated to division three of the Oswestry and District Bowls League, made a disappointing start to the new season as they found themselves well beaten 9-1 at Whittington B.

Eileen Sinker (21-3) was the best of three single figure winners for Whittington who prevailed by 68 (157-89) shots, with Peter Williams a 21-4 victor and Brian Charles coming through to eight. Chris Lloyd bagged a consolation for Lion by winning to 10.

It was also a good night for Whittington E who secured a 7-3 (156-128) success away to WESTON RHYN C, Bryn Jones leading the charge to nine while Eric Gale was the pick of the replies to 13.

Peter Adams and Cheryl Weaver (both 21-10) shone as CHURCH C opened their account in division four with a 9-1 (159-105) beating of visiting Llangollen B. FOX LANE are up and running with an 8-2 (149-103) home win over Ceiriog Valley C. Ben Parkes and Peter Williams winning to four.

LLANMYNECH B succumbed 6-4 at Plas Kynaston B in the same division, losing the aggregate by 15, with Eaton Williams the best of the replies.

In division six, newcomers IFTON sounded an early warning with a 9-1 (157-105) romp at Whittington D, Geraint Williams taking the coppers to six.

■ CHURCH B suffered an 8-2 (160-127) reverse at their CRIFTINS counterparts in their season opener in division two, their two replies going from William Lewis (21-16) and Merv Weaver to 18. The home side had three winners to 11 - Lenny Jones, James Gillam and Tony Johnson.

A fine start on greens for Ifton bowlers

IFTON maintained their steady start to the Flowfit Shropshire Premier Bowls League season as they moved up to sixth in the table, just one point off second spot, with a 9-5 home success over battling Bylet.

Geraint Williams led the way with the night's best result, defeating Nick Power 21-6 to take the most valuable player honour as the St Martins side secured a 33-shots (232-199) success.

Keiron Roberts was not far behind in winning to seven, while Brian Hayes was a 21-13 victor and Darren Lacey prevailed 21-15.

Megis Phillips defeated Nick Taylor 21-17, and Ian Metcalf and Ricky Jones both won to 18 to complete the winners list.

Giles Evans suffered his first defeat of the season when going down 21-16 to Russell Morris, while Dicky Jones was edged out 21-20.

Ifton look to continue their solid start when they visit Bowring - who lost 10-4 at Castelfields last week - on Friday night.

Cricket side warm up with win over Wem

WITH the new league season now just days away, Oswestry's cricketers completed their pre-season warm-up matches with a comfortable home win against Wem.

The visitors elected to bat first but an impressive spell by Dan Bowen (3-26) soon had them on the ropes.

Adam Lloyd came on towards the end of the innings and returned the remarkable figures of 3-0 as Wem were dismissed for 88.

Oswestry lost two early wickets in reply, but Robbie Clarke (38) and Alex Huxley (27) saw them to a four-wicket success.

The game continued after the total had been reached to allow both sides more practice, and the highlight of the extra period was a stand of 70 between skipper Mark Robinson (40) and 14-year-old Xavie Clarke (29 not out).

■ Oswestry are looking in good shape for the new season in the Birmingham League division one with Saturday's opening game against Walsall at Morda Road starting at 12 noon with entry to the ground free.

International coaching tips for COBRA

FORMER Welsh hooker Robin McBryde was special guest at the Cae COBRA ground on Sunday afternoon when he led a coaching session in the medium of Welsh.

As part of the lead-up to the National Eisteddfod, McBryde, now Welsh national forwards coach, took the session which involved the under-13, 14, 15 and 16 teams from COBRA.

Sponsored by mentor Iaitih Maldwyn, an organisation that promotes the Welsh language in Montgomeryshire through, a variety of activities and events, the session was undertaken in the Welsh language. Hooker McBryde was capped 37 times for Wales.

Five-try Fox stars for second team

WINGER Jack Fox turned on the style to help Oswestry II to a resounding 52-17 home victory against Trafford Metrovick to put paid to any relegation fears in the Freshlet North West League division four (south).

Needing to win their last game of the season to stay up, the Eagles were indebted to first teamer Fox who made his mark with five of the eight tries.

Such is the congestion in the basement, that victory lifted the Os side up several places to finish a creditable sixth in the table.

With a strong team at their disposal, it was not long before full back James Anderson broke through the lines to score the first try, the conversion missed by Dan Wills who then broke through for another unconverted score. Fox then opened his account following a lineout inside Metro's half, side-stepping two defenders to cross the line, with Wills converting.

Oswestry continued to dominate, and a line-out saw Fox make another great run to score his second and the Eagles' fourth try, converted by Wills.

Metro hit back with a try of their own, but Fox was in unstoppable form and launched a terrific run from his own 22-metre line to complete his hat-trick, Wills again converting for a 31-5 interval lead. Trafford reduced the arrears with a couple of tries, but the home side were soon rewarded with a further score from Fox, who then raced over for his fifth try not long after that with Jim Dilks converting.

Oswestry's next try came when Adam Haythorn made a fantastic run to be tackled a few metres short of the five-metre line, but produced a superb off-load to Ben Jones who bagged Oswestry's eighth try converted Dilks to complete the scoring.

The Eagles now have a few months to rest up before pre-season training starts and the league action gets underway again in September.

Mid-table OSWESTRY III finished their season in division five of the Freshlet League with a high scoring 58-24 loss at Crewe and Nantwich IV.

Parry hopes for second celebration

BOSS Mike Parry is ready to clock up the miles as his Guilsfield side bid to put the seal on a tremendous campaign by lifting the Huws Gray Cymru Alliance Cup on Saturday.

Having finished third in the Alliance, their highest league position, the Guils would dearly like to cap it off by landing the league cup against Mid Wales rivals Caersws in the final at Porthmadog (2.30pm).

They last lifted the silverware in 2011 and Parry hits the road this weekend as his side aim to emulate that success of four years ago.

"I'm away near Skipton in Yorkshire for a family party, so I'll be making a 350-mile round trip to the final and back," he said.

"It's a long way, but hopefully we can win the trophy which will make the journey a lot easier. It could be a long way back if we don't!"

"If we can come away with a trophy on top of a third-place finish in a tough league, then it would be a good return for the season."

"Caersws can be a bit hit and miss, but they are dangerous up front. But we are always a threat going forward ourselves, so it should be a good game."

The Guils have plenty of options, with front runner Rhydian Morris now back after working abroad.

Caersws, three-times winners of the Welsh Premier Cup, have yet to collect the league cup despite reaching the final twice. Player-boss Graham Evans feels his players can get the job done despite finishing only eighth in the league.

The Bluebirds have saved some of their best form for cup competitions this term, having reached the quarter-finals of the Welsh Cup and booked their place in the Central Wales Cup final.

"We haven't been as consistent as we would have liked in the league, but we deserve something this season," said Evans. "On our day we are capable of beating anyone in the league."

Jake Parr and Graham Jones are back in contention after missing last week.

Llanfair looking to wrap up cup double

HOLDERS Llanfair United secured their place in the final of the Central Wales Cup after seeing off Rhayader Town 2-0 at Caersws.

The Spar Mid Wales League leaders carved the better early chances and took the lead just before half time when Ross Frame headed in a Paul Griffiths corner at the near post.

Rhayader upped their game in the second half, but victory was secured when Frame, who earlier missed a terrific chance, capitalised on a defensive mistake when rounding two defenders to score.

Llanfair will now meet another Cymru Alliance side, Caersws, in the final, with the date and venue to be confirmed.

Llanfair are also going for glory in the league cup, and meet Penrhynoch in the semi final at Machynlleth on Tuesday, May 5. Llanhaeadr take on Bow Street at Carno in the other semi-final on Friday, May 1, with both ties kicking off at 6.30pm.

Shantry and Aussie in for Oswestry

COUNTY star Jack Shantry and Aussie batsman Michael Johnson provide Oswestry's cricketers with a double boost ahead of their tough season's opener at home to Walsall on Saturday (12noon).

The duo are both set to make their debuts for the Mordra Road side who face an early test against the West Midlands big guns as they look to get their Birmingham League division one campaign off to a winning start.

Fresh from tackling Sussex in the County championship this week, 27-year-old Shantry is free from his professional commitments with Worcestershire to turn out for Oswestry this weekend, which club chairman Mike Robinson admits is a shot in the arm for the club.

"We're unsure how many games he'll be free to play for us, we're hoping it will be six or seven, but every game will be a bonus," said Robinson.

"It's great that Jack can play for us in the first week, as we could hardly have tougher opponents than Walsall in our first game."

"They have won the Birmingham League premier division title four times in the last nine years, but one bad season saw them relegated last time around."

The 6ft 4ins Shantry played a major role last year in helping Worcestershire gain promotion from division two of the County Championship.

As well as being a regular wicket-taker in First Class cricket, he is also no mean batsman – as his unbeaten century against Surrey last September showed.

Australian batsman Michael Johnson, who was a full-time professional with Worcestershire two years ago, will also be making his Oswestry debut and is expected to bat in the top four.

The hosts will be without all-rounders Joe Carrasco, who is likely to be out through injury for about four weeks, and Elliott Bowen, who is working.

START NEW RUN SAYS TNS BOSS

CRAIG HARRISON insists The New Saints will be doubly determined to finish their campaign in style after losing their unbeaten record with just two games remaining.

The Welsh Premier champions missed a chance of rewriting the record books after suffering their first defeat in all competitions when edged out 1-0 at Airbus UK last Saturday.

That reverse denied the Saints the prospect of becoming the first side to lift the Welsh domestic treble while going through the season without losing. But manager Harrison says the "pressure's off" as his side prepare for Sunday's last league game at Bala Town (1pm) before taking on Newtown in the final of the Welsh Cup the following weekend.

"You know at some point you're going to lose, but the disappointing thing was that we came so close with just two games to go," he said.

"It was a fantastic record, and I couldn't be any prouder. It was not the result we wanted, but to have our first defeat after 40 or so games is an outstanding achievement by everyone at the club."

"We can be proud of everything we have done, winning the League and the Word Cup, and we've still got the Welsh Cup final to come."

Rotate

"It's now given us a bit of prod for the last two games; the extra pressure of going unbeaten is now off and we want to finish the season well and start another run. When you've lost you want to bounce back straight away."

With the Welsh Cup looming against Newtown the following week, Harrison is certain to rotate his squad for Sunday's televised clash with a Bala side chasing the runners-up spot.

"I'll be looking to give more game time to some of the team who have not played as much as they would have liked," he said.

"We've got such a strong squad that we can do that without weakening the team, and it will give some of the players the opportunity to stake their case for the Welsh Cup final."

Although the Saints were below their best at Airbus, Harrison felt a draw would have been fair. "I don't think anyone really deserved to win, but we have to put it behind us and move on," said Harrison, who felt "sloppy" play brought about the Airbus goal.

"After that we came to life and had a good chance to get a draw at the end," he added. "But there are no excuses."

Eagles fly for Isle of Man win

The Oswestry rugby players before heading for the airport after their win on the Isle of Man. OSWESTRY ended the season in memorable fashion after pulling off a successful coup on the Isle of Man to return from Vagabonds with a 29-10 success in rugby's South Lancs and Cheshire Two.

After swamping lowly Ashton on Mersey 72-3 the previous week to guarantee a fourth place finish, Oswestry made the trip across the water to tackle their Douglas hosts in good spirits.

After a 7.30am start, before flying out from Liverpool, the Eagles were soon in the ascendency as they showed aggression and style to shock their strong hosts with a well worked try in the corner by James Booth giving them the lead, with Fin Grogan converting to make the score 7-0 within two minutes of the start.

"It was a fantastic finish to a magnificent game of rugby and a memorable trip back to Granville Park where we were welcomed back by the club," said first team manager Martin Ord.

"It was another coup on the Isle of Man, and we now look forward to the next season, train hard and hope to get nearer to the top of this Cheshire League."

Three new signings in at Cae Glas

CAE Glas have bagged three new signings ahead of the forthcoming season in the Shropshire Cricket League division two which gets under way with Saturday's trip to Willey, writes JOHN BRIDGWATER.

Seam bowler Sammy Gnanaswivan Ponnampalam, off-spinner Tarik Bodasing and Ollie Pope, a middle order batsman, are all added to last season's squad that has been shaping up with nets for six consecutive weeks at Ellesmere College.

Ponnampalam and Pope are set to get an early chance this weekend as some of the team will miss the first fortnight of the campaign as they are in the West Indies, following England's fortunes in the Test series.

Last year's star performers; Rich Nimanatha and Tom Gardner are not available for the opening game, but Gardner is back in to contention for the second week along with Barry Richards, recently back from China.

Knee surgery

After missing the first game, Ben Hipkiss will also return the following week after recent knee surgery, and captain Keith Yapp admitted: "Competition will be strong this season once we get over the first four weeks."

WELSHPOOL, who along with Montgomery, were relegated to division two last year following a dramatic final day of the season, will be hoping for improved fortunes this term when they start at Wellington III on Saturday.

Elsewhere, Montgomery on their travels to Bishop's Castle and Ellesmere entertain Church Stretton in the same division.

Frankton will be looking to build on last season's efforts in the premier division when they open their campaign at Broseley, and Knockin and Kinnerley launch their division one season with a short trip to Alberbury.

Jones: Young side can bounce back

BERRIEW boss Dave Jones is coming to terms with his side's demotion from the Spar Mid Wales League division one – and believes the current crop of players is good enough to make a swift return.

Three sides are likely to drop down to the second division, with the Rhiew-siders – who have now finished their fixtures – second from bottom.

"Obviously it is a very disappointing end to what has been a difficult season," said the former Welshpool manager.

"It started with a number of players leaving shortly before the start of the season, which caught us on the hop a bit."

"Since I took over we have persisted with a young side who have done exceptionally well in the circumstances."

"They are a good bunch of lads who, while they may lack a bit physically at the moment, are very good players."

He added: "Obviously the club will be looking to bounce straight back into division one."

"If I am still in charge then, while I'd like to add a few new faces I believe that the group of young lads we have got are good enough to bring us back up."
